Did you Know

By Pat J. Kirwin

THAT one of the greatest feats of heroism recounted in the city's history took place near the old aqueduct on the Scioto river in the winter of 1838, when a laborer working in the Cradlebaugh tannery, a quarter of a mile away, heard the cries of seven drowning children and raced to the scene to make a thrilling rescue.

Here's the story:

Four sons of Jesse Richardson, also an employe in the tannery, who lived with his family in a little home on the west bank of the river, and three other children, walked out on the aqueduct one morning, soon after it had been rebuilt. There were a number of planks and timbers which belonged to the old pile bridge extending out from the aqueduct, and unmindful of the danger, the children walked off the timbers into 12 feet of canal water.

The river was swollen and a strong current raged through the waters, so the children were immediately swept down the stream, crying and screaming for help as they went along. The mother of the Richardson children happened on the scene, and frantic and helpless, began to scream for aid.

Her cries attracted the attention of John Beynt, who was busily employed in the Cradlebaugh tannery. He hurriedly left the scene, however, and racing with all his might, he went to the aqueduct, more than a quarter of a mile away, walked a narrow timber 450 feet long, suspended himself by the side of the trunk from one abutment to another, gained the western bank and jumped into the river.

In the meantime all of the children were a quarter of a mile down the stream, and almost miraculously none had been drowned. Beynt swam to the scene and grabbing two of the Richardson sons, raced to shore. By this time, a small canal boat came along and assisted in the rescue of the others. Three of the children nearly drowned, but with the aid of two physicians were soon revived.

Beynt, justifiably, was acclaimed as the town's hero for some time.

That the city's fiery Whig newspaper, The Independent American, of 1838, made the following comment on a bust of President Martin Van Buren, a Democrat, being placed in the capital library: "A marble bust of Martin Van Buren has been placed in the library of the Capitol. It would be well if a similar one were placed in the White House instead of the original."

THAT The Pickaway Magazine, a literary publication printed by several north-end youths, appeared in Circleville as a monthly beginning in October, 1901. According to a statement in the first issue, the publication was "owned, controlled and managed by Lloyd Jonnes, Clyde Hanna, Hughes and Sydney Van Ness and was printed on the Park-pl press." Subscription price was 50 cents per year and single copies were five cents each. The publication was a very interesting project and enjoyed a fairly good circulation for a time.

That instead of a gasoline tax to finance the repair and building of roads, taxpayers 100 years ago were forced to pay a road tax of 15 cents per $100 valuation. With this levy, only $2,600 was collected in Pickaway-co in 1834.

That the village of Millport, in Harrison-twp, was once a thriving center and in 1838 was termed "one of the busiest little places in the Scioto valley." Several years before the village had been laid out into lots and approximately 110 were sold in the summer of 1836. Situated on the Ohio canal, the village benefited from the flow of business along this line.

BOHNERT STATEMENT HITS CITY MONOPOLY ON COUNTY POSITIONS

Asks Party to Scatter Nominations Throughout Pickaway

VOTERS DISPLEASED?

"80 Per Cent Here in 15 Years' Time"

Nathan C. Bohnert, of Monroe-twp, Pickaway-co's representative in the general assembly for the past four years, came to the front today with a statement concerning the coming primary that is causing considerable discussion in political circles.

The statement was circulated on printed matter signed by Mr. Bohnert.

The representative who classifies himself a "dirt farmer" does not seek renomination because of ill health.

Bohnert heads his statement: "A Timely Warning to The Democrats."

The complete statement, verbatim, follows;

EACH DEPENDANT

"Circleville owes nearly all of its commercial and material existence to Pickaway-co, and most of Pickaway-co depends on Circleville as a market for its products and a place to buy its necessities. Each is dependent on the other for its very existence and they should cooperate.

"Of the ten county offices to be filled this November, Circleville is asking for all, except county commissioner, which is a renomination for second term.

"Under the delegate system, and for a few years under the mandatory primary system, the leaders of the Democratic party, worked with an unselfish spirit to have the nominations scattered all over the county, and it was a rare occurrence for a Republican to be elected to a county office. For the past 15 years, 80 per cent of the nominations have been dropped in or right at Circleville, and note the increased success the Republicans have had and Circleville has furnished its share of disloyalty in every instance.

HAS NO GRIEVANCE

"I have no personal or political grievance against anyone in Circleville. I have been treated very fairly, under the circumstances, at all times that I have run for office. I am writing this from a party spirit standpoint, but there are hundreds of county Democrats that are expressing themselves as being tired of this treatment and the resentment is growing stronger every year.

"You may say that the country can combine and defeat the city for those Democratic nominations. That is very hard to do, even if there is a greater number of candidates in the city for county offices, because the city candidates are in closer touch with the country voter than the country candidates are with the city voter and the country voter, because of business and many other relations that cause almost every day contacts. The consequences are, that the city gets about all of the Democratic nominations which makes enough disgruntled Democrats to elect Republicans. It is the duty of our county executive committee and the duty of unselfish leaders of the party, to see that some of this injustice to the country at large is checked.

"There is not one office in the county a man's office or a woman's office, qualifications for the office being equal. In Pickaway-co, the county offices belong to the Democrats, and should be filled with Democrats, and a sure way to do this is to nominate well-qualified, good vote-getting candidates. Scatter the nominations to all parts of the county, and it will be a very rare case of a Republican being elected."

DOUBLE PARKING NOW BOTHERSOME

The double parking situation on W. Main-st has again become bothersome. It was not long ago that a warning was issued that persons who insisted on double parking when there was an available space would be punished. Such parking practice has been observed quite often lately.

Much time has been lost and inconvenience caused because motorists have insisted upon such parking.

MANY THRONG TO SCIOTO-TP

George Hinton, Myrl Hinton, Win Pulling Prizes; Many Events Booked Today.

Another record-breaking crowd was expected to pour into Commercial Point Saturday, as the second day's program of its seventh annual home coming and fish fry got underway.

Several thousand persons swarmed the village yesterday and last night to enjoy the first day's festivities, but with a huge parade, big coon chase, quilt and flower show, horseshoe tournament, colt show and countless other contests scheduled for today, crowds were expected to flock into the Scioto-twp seat.

The scene was a bee-hive of county candidates as nearly all were present.

The horse pulling contest was the highlight of Friday's program and was witnessed with much enthusiasm. More than $80 was distributed in prizes to the winners in the two divisions, heavyweight and lightweight. Three veterinarians, Dr. Jones of Harrisburg, Dr. Spindler of Ashville, and Dr. White, of Grove City, served as judges.

The horses were required to pull a mud boat loaded with sand, with a 14-foot chain serving as the connecting piece. The amount of sand loaded on the boat determined the strength of the horses and ultimately the winners.

Judges announced the following winners:

Heavyweight class, over 3,000 pounds, George Hinton, Lockbourne, R. F. D. 1, first; H. M. Beavers, Orient R. F. D. 1, second; and K. E. Dountz, Ashville, third.

Lightweight class, under 3,000 pounds, Myrl Hinton, Lockbourne, R. F. D. 1, first; Orin Neal, Ashville, R. F. D. 2, second, Clarence White, Harrisburg, third, and Charles Casto, Harrisburgh, fourth.

Jack Dempsey Daddy of Girl

Baby and Parents Both Doing Well, Business Manager Declares.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Jack Dempsey's first born will not follow in his footsteps in the ring.

This fact was firmly established today when it was announced that the former heavyweight champion's wife had given birth to a seven and a half pound baby girl at Polyclinic hospital. Both Mrs. Dempsey, who was Hannah Williams, stage star, and the baby were reported doing well.

"And so is Jack," reported Max Waxman, Dempsey's business manager. "He took a lot of punishment, though. He was up all night pacing the floor. But he, too, is resting well now."

Dempsey had expressed the hope the baby would be a boy.

"If it is I'm going to match him with Gene Tunney's kid as soon as they are big enough," he said as he was walking up and down the hospital corridors.

After he learned he had become the father of a girl, the ex-champion quickly assured his friends that he was satisfied.

"Just so long as they are both all right I am satisfied," he said.

Relief Check Comes

The county auditor's office received a check for $1,296.17 from the state auditor's office Saturday to be used for direct relief purposes in the county during August.

This is part of the state relief commission's appropriation for the month.

REPORT HAMILTON TO BE AMBUSHED IN CHICAGO SOON

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.— John Hamilton's number is up.

The kill-crazy satellite of the late John Dillinger will cash in his checks within the next thirty days.

And the frowning, paunchy Hamilton will preferably not be taken alive.

From sources close to the department of justice these facts were learned today by International News Service.

It was also learned that Hamilton, wanted for murder, prison escape and banditry, will probably be ambushed in or near Chicago.

SUCCESSOR TO LEIST STUDIED

Democratic Chairman Does Not Seek Re-election, He Tells His Friends.

Declaration of C. A. Leist, local attorney, that he does not seek re-election as chairman of the Pickaway-co Democratic executive committee leaves the field wide open for the election of his successor, party leaders said Saturday.

Mr. Leist has been in poor health, and has been very busy with his law practice. The job, for which little thanks is received, takes "too much time," Mr. Leist has told friends. The past two years have been exceedingly trying ones for the chairman with recommendations to be made for jobs made available by the change in administration.

Mr. Leist is concluding his second term.

The procedure of selecting the executive committee in Pickaway-co is somewhat different than that in surrounding counties. Within ten days after the primary the successful Democratic candidates meet and study the list of executive committee members. Most of the members are usually renamed but often changes are made. The candidates then furnish the list to the newly-elected central committee where final appointment is made. The executive committee members then meet to organize by naming chairman, vice chairman, secretary and treasurer.

Members of the present executive committee include Mr. Leist, John S. Ritt, T. D. Krinn, J. W. Kirwin, Harry W. Moore, Richard Simkins, J. D. Hummel, E. S. Neuding, G. G. Adkins; John Bell, Roy White, T. B. Gephart, Walter Hedges, G. C. Cline, James List, W. E. Arnold, J. M. Tootle, Jesse Pitt, Harry Briggs, John T. Dick, Adam Rueb, Turney Pontius, Melvin Armstrong, J. R. Hott, O. M. Beckett, J. B. Cromley, Adam Kuntz, and Ward Peck.

UNDERWOOD TO SPEAK

The Democratic Woman's club of Pickaway-co will hold its regular meeting Wednesday, Aug. 8, instead of Friday, Aug. 10 at the court house.

Congressman Mell G. Underwood will address the meeting and a number of state candidates have expressed their intention of attending.

The meeting is open to all Democratic men and women of the county.

HUEY IS ADAMANT

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 4.—An augmented force of national guardsmen, with more machine guns trained on the city hall, was the answer of U. S. Senator Huey Long and his political machine today to a court order demanding that the militia be disbanded.

To prevent possible seizure by the State troops the city administration strengthened its force of armed policemen stationed in the city offices.

Fear that some untoward act might bring an armed clash between the two forces caused an air of apprehension.

DIXON TO TALK TO RED CROSS

Meeting Called Wednesday Evening by Frank Lynch, Chapter Chairman.

Frank A. Lynch, chairman of the Pickaway-co chapter of the American Red Cross, announced Saturday that an organization meeting will be held next Wednesday evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

The meeting is called for 7:30 o'clock.

F. C. Dixon, new field representative, is expected to attend the meeting and explain plans of the Red Cross for the coming winter.

All members of the organization are urged to attend.

JAPS ASSAIL SOVIET POLICY

Warning of Vicious Feeling Aired In Newspaper; Situation Watched.

TOKYO, Aug. 4.—The Japanese government is about to serve an "Ominous" warning on Russia, listing a chapter of "unfriendly" acts, the influential newspaper Nichi Nichi declared today.

Foreign Minister Koki Hirota and War Minister Gen. Hayashi are preparing to adopt a vigorous policy toward the Soviet government, the Nichi Nichi declared.

Japan, the newspaper asserted, will point out to the Soviet government:

First—That Soviet airplanes frequently have crossed the borders of Manchukuo, the Manchurian state set up by the Japanese government after Japanese armies had routed the Chinese.

ATTACKED STEAMER

Second—That Soviet airplanes had repeatedly attacked Manchukoan steamers on the Amur and Sungari rivers.

KU KLUX KLAN TOUCHY ISSUE

Fate of Some Candidates May Depend On It; All Seekers Active.

By International News Service

With the Ku Klux Klan issue suddenly injected in the Ohio political campaign with the statewide primaries only 10 days away, candidates for a host of offices in the state today were making a whirlwind scramble for the ballots of Ohio's 2,000,000 voters.

Further developments in the Klan issue were promised while many political observers, including newspapermen who cover the capitol at Columbus, insisted that the fight over the Klan could decide the fate of many of the candidates.

HIGHLIGHTS LISTED

Highlights in the political campaign were:

DENMAN'S STATION ENTERED, ROBBED

By removing hinges from a front door and then loosening the latch, thieves broke into the filling station operated by Harry "Dick" Denman on Route 23, north of the city, early Saturday, and carried away an amount of merchandise.

A description of two men, believed to have committed the robbery, was obtained by Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell and broadcast over the highway patrol station. They were believed to have been riding in a 1928 Dodge coupe.

Merchandise reported taken included one Dunlop tire and tube, six quart cans of Sinclair oil, and four quart cans of Pennsylvania oil.

Anniversary Finds Nation In Weaker Position Than At World War's Opening

(Copyright, 1934, by International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The twentieth anniversary of the start of the World War finds the American army in a relatively weaker position than it was shortly before the United States entered the European conflict.

This was disclosed today by a high ranking military chief attached to the war department general staff. A national defense survey confirmed his views.

It was learned in authoritative army quarters that, despite all the costly lessons learned about lack of preparedness in the world war, this country's munitions reserve has dropped so low it would not last more than six weeks if the United States had to fight on a scale comparable with that experienced in the last conflict.

LACKING MODERN GUNS

Furthermore, the army is almost totally lacking in modern rifles, tanks, field artillery, anti-aircraft guns and gas masks.

A deplorable low munition reserve and lack of modern army equipment has placed the United States seventh in military strength

DYNAMITE LOCATED ON RAILROAD USED BY THE PRESIDENT

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 4.—Eight sticks of dynamite with detonating caps and fuses set, four days ago on the right of way adjoining the railroad bed over which President Roosevelt's special train passed safely at 1 a. m. today was revealed by Sheriff G. G. Miles of Spokane.

Taking maximum precautions, Sheriff Miles declared he immediately informed secret service agents and posted a constant guard of six men near the spot where the dynamite was found.

The dynamite was discovered by a watch tower operator of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Co., two and a half miles southwest of Spokane.

CALVERT HELD ON 2 CHARGES

Harrison-Twp Man Indicted On Alleged Embezzlement of Son's Money.

DAVIS SENTENCED

Glenn Clark's Trial Postponed, Judge Says.

Berman Calvert, Harrison-twp, who was secretly indicted on two charges of embezzlement by the recent special grand jury, was arrested Friday and pleaded not guilty to both charges when arraigned before Judge J. W. Adkins.

Bond was fixed at $1,000 on each charge and he was committed to the county jail in default.

Calvert was indicted on charges in connection with the guardianship of his son, Franklin Gale Calvert. It is charged in one indictment that he embezzled approximately $350 from the son's estate and in the second charge he allegedly embezzled $150.

A trial date is expected to be set by Judge J. W. Adkins within the next two weeks.

BROTHERS GUILTY

Alfred and Gerald Davis, brothers, of Pickaway-twp, also indicted by the recent grand jury on charges of forgery, changed their former pleas of not guilty to guilty before Judge J. W. Adkins Friday, and the former was sentenced to serve one to 20 years in the Mansfield reformatory.

Gerald Davis was poroled for two years.

Alfred Davis was indicted on two counts while his brother was charged but with one count. The checks were given to the Funk grocery and J. C. Penney Co., this city.

Davis and Carroll Louden, 27, Miami-co, who also pleaded guilty to five indictments concerning several robberies in Ashville and was sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory, were taken there Friday by Deputy Sheriff Bob Armstrong.

TRIAL DELAYED

Trial of Glenn "Spikey" Clark, the reputed leader of the gang in the Ashville robberies, which was scheduled to begin in common pleas court Monday, has been postponed for several weeks, Judge Adkins announced Saturday.

U. L. Riegel, N. Court-st, who was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of driving while intoxicated, has not been arraigned as yet. He is represented by C. A. Leist.

Roy Grooms, this city, indicted on a charge of failing to provide for his child, furnished a property bond in common pleas court Saturday and was released from the county jail. Judge Adkins told Grooms Wednesday that if he did not furnish a property bond, he would be sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory.

Earl Smith was Grooms' attorney.

HINDENBURG'S WILL EVADES SEARCHERS

NEUDECK, Germany, Aug. 4.—President Paul Von Hindenburg's will cannot be found, although it has been searched for frantically, it became known today, and this circumstance may account for the government's delay in definitely announcing where he will be buried.

It is known the great field marshal made a will disposing of his modest estate, however. It is thought he made it privately and it must be found in his home. Dr. Otto Meissner, President Von Hindenburg's secretary of state, is understood to have searched repeatedly for the document, which he declares he is sure is in existence.

PLOT NAMES 5 RICH MEN; BARE THREAT

Extortionists Eye Doheny, Monnette, Pantages, Doyle, Gettle

POLICE SEEK CLUES

Note to Monnette Banker, Demands $60,000

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4.—Extortionists today threatened five of the wealthiest men on the Pacific coast.

E. L. Doheny, multi-millionaire oil magnate; Orra E. Monnette, wealthy banker; Alexander Pantages, millionaire theater owner; Jack J. Doyle, sportsman and oil man, and William F. Gettle, millionaire financier, who was kidnaped a few months ago were those threatened, police, sheriffs' investigators and federal agents revealed today.

Officers revealed that the principal plot was aimed at Monnette and that $60,000 had been demanded in a note which said:

"We have high-powered rifles, equipped with silencers. Watch out."

LETTERS RECEIVED

Headed by the banker the extortion note, officers said, listed the other four men, and it was learned that similar letters had been received by each of the other four ordering them to communicate with Monnette.

Although every effort was made to veil the case with the greatest secrecy it was learned that Monnette, a vice-president of the Bank of America here, received the first note Thursday.

Police also revealed that thus far neither Doheny nor Gettle had received the notes addressed to them.

Pantages received his note Thursday, but that delivered to Doyle did not arrive until Friday, it was said.

Investigators declared that none of the listed in the missives are "greatly concerned" but admitted that "steps have been taken to give them every safeguard."

Monnette, the officers said, was the only one who received the principal letter, with the threats and the demand for cash.

This letter said:

"We demand $60,000 in cash. It must be in old bills. $30,000 in $50 bills; $20,000 in $20 bills and $10,000 in $10 bills.

"You can communicate with the police if you want to but that will make it too bad for yourself and family."

It was then ordered that Monnette insert an advertisement in the classified columns of a morning newspaper to advice the extortionists that the letter had been received and Monnette was ready to comply with the demands.

At another point the threat note, which contained the clause concerning high-powered rifles read:

"We mean business."

It was revealed early today that the combined forces of the federal, county and city investigators were engaged in a hunt for the desperate gang.

IGNORED LETTER

Pantages, the officers revealed, had refused to take any notice of the letter sent him, and told investigators he had torn it up and thrown it away.

There was some indication that

HITLER TO EXTEND POWER IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—Hitler, supreme in life, is now preparing to extend his power over the German people after his death. He is going to choose his own successor.

He is the first modern dictator to do so. But he is the first modern dictator to become a Caesar.

For Germany has had a revolution during the last forty eight hours just as important as the revolution that brought the national socialists to power. It may sound paradoxical but it is true that Hitler has not only staged a coup d'etat against the last remnants of the old Weimar state constitution but has made a revolution that will equally destroy national socialism as Germany has known it for the last eighteen months.

The Church Invites You

OUR NEED OF THE CHURCH

J. Sherman Wallace has said, "The church is the spiritual power house of the community. It calls together the people for worship. It teaches Christian truth, inculcates Christian ideals and develops Christian attitudes. It would be as hard to be truly religious without the church as it would be to be truly educated without the school. The ideals of Christ are slowly permeating the thought of the world. In national councils and international relations they must yet become supreme. Wherever the church has gone these ideals have triumphed. To preserve the highest ideals of any community we must make the church strong." Why not do your share, accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

Church Forum

How does worshipping in groups help the Christian?

There is a law of the mind and soul that the highest experiences must be shared; if one is alone and is charmed by a beautiful landscape there is a longing to have someone near to whom an expression of appreciation and wonderment can be made—the beautiful must be shared to be really enjoyed. With a vision of the wonders of God which produces natural praise and thanksgiving, one wants to seek the company of others to really enjoy such an experience most.

Inspiration does not come so readily when one is alone. It is when a group participates in expression of praise, devotion and thanksgivings, that inspiration is generated. The volume of song bursting out of hearts surcharged with the spirit of Christ moves one to higher planes of aspiration and endeavor. So the entire program of worship affects the individual.

A trickle of water cannot do much when millions of trickles come together and form a river, then something is accomplished. Worship brings individuals together and makes them as one soul. In public worship one discovers God, the other fellow and himself. It is in public worship that a man is brought face to face with what he ought to do in life and where the presence of God is recognized and experienced.

The one hundredth birthday of Bishop Isaac Lane, founder of Lane college for negroes and oldest living bishop of any church was recently celebrated by the white and colored people of Jackson, Tenn. where he lives. He began to preach while a slave and has been one of the leading educators of the race.

In October the New Brunswick Theological Seminary in New Brunswick, N. J., the oldest theological seminary in the United States will celebrate the one hundredth and fiftieth anniversary of its founding. It was established by the Dutch Reformed church, the earliest church in New York and New Jersey. The seminary has had a continuous life and a constant succession of students from the time of its founding. Its present campus and first building on it date from 1856.

It will take $10,000,000 more to complete the Protestant Episcopal cathedral of St. John the Divine according to Bishop William T. Manning who in the last ten years has raised $10,000,000 for the edifice. The cathedral when finished will be the largest Gothic cathedral in the world with 16,822,000 cubic feet of content a seating capacity for more than 15,000 or standing room for 40,000.

The world ignores the man who thinks he is indispensable.

ELISHA HELPS THE NEEDY

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 4:1-44.
GOLDEN TEXT—And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me. Matthew 25:40.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Elisha Helps a Woman in Need.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Elisha Helps Those in Need.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How We May Help Others.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Responsibility for Others.

I. Elisha Helps a Widow (vv. 1-7.)

1. Her distress (v. 1). Her husband, a godly man, was taken away by death, leaving a debt. A certain creditor was about to make her sons slaves because of the nonpayment of the debt. We are not told for what reason the debt was incurred. It may have been because of charitable deeds.

2. Her only possession (v. 2). A pot of oil was all that she had in her house. God can use what we possess, and to set that apart is the measure of our responsibility.

3. The oil miraculously increased (vv. 3-7). The meager supply of oil was so increased that the sale of it paid the debt. There was enough left for the sustenance of the family.

II. Elisha's Kind Deeds to the Shunammite Woman (vv. 8-37).

1. Her hospitality to Elisha (vv. 8-11).

a. Its occasion (v. 8). Observing that Elisha passed continually by her house in his journeys, she was moved with compassion toward him. She perceived that he was a man of God and was called upon to deny himself of many things. She determined, according to her ability, to supply his needs.

b. She fitted up a room for him (vv. 10, 11). She equipped this room with the necessary furniture to make it comfortable.

2. Elisha endeavors to repay her (vv. 12-17).

a. He offers to ask a favor of the king or head of the army (v. 13). This showed that Elisha had influence at the royal court. The woman's reply shows her truly to be a great woman. She would not change the calm and quiet of her home for a place even in the royal court.

b. Elisha announces the coming of a son to her (vv. 16, 17). Through inquiry he discovered that this woman was childless. This in that day was considered a great misfortune. He assured her that in about a year from that time she should experience the joy of motherhood.

3. The coming of sorrow to her home (vv. 18-21). The child which brought joy to her heart was suddenly taken away. The cause of his death was probably a sunstroke, for the heat of the sun at harvest time in that country is intense. When the child died she laid him upon the bed of the man of God. Her faith was such that she did not make preparation for burial but for restoration of life (Heb. 11:35).

4. The mother goes to Elisha (vv. 22-28). Happy is the one who in the days of prosperity and sunshine has so related himself to God and his prophets that help and sympathy can be given in time of trouble.

a. She took hold of Elisha's feet (v. 27). This was the eastern way of enforcing a petition.

b. She chided the prophet (v. 28). "Did I desire a son?" This implies that it would have been better not to have a child than to have lost him so soon.

5. The child restored (vv. 29-37).

a. Gehazi's fruitless errand (vv. 29-31). He hurried away and placed the prophet's staff upon the child's face, but it did not revive. Doubtless failure was due to his lack of faith.

b. Elisha's efficient service (vv. 32-37). He went to the house where the dead child was and did two things.

(1) He prayed (v. 33). He knew that no one but God could help so he closed the door, shutting all others out.

(2) He stretched himself upon the child (v. 34). He brought his warm body in touch with the cold body of the child. God blesses and saves through the warm touch of those who are in touch with him.

III. Elisha Feeding One Hundred Men (vv. 42-44).

These hundred men were likely prophets of God. From the meager supply of twenty barley loaves and some ears of new corn these hundred men were fed. How like the deed of the Master in feeding five thousand with the barley loaves and small fishes.

Virtue in Abstinence

Admiral Farragut tells this story of his boyhood days: When I was ten years old I was with father on board a man-of-war. I had some qualities that I thought made a man of me. I could swear like an old salt, could drink as stiff a glass of grog as if I had doubled Cape Horn, and could smoke like a locomotive. I was great at cards and fond of gunning in every shape. At the close of dinner one day, father turned everybody out of the cabin, locked the door and said, "David, what do you mean to be?"

"I mean to follow the sea."

"Follow the sea! Yes, to be a poor miserable drunken sailor before the mast, be kicked and cuffed around the world and die in some fever hospital in a foreign land. No, David, no boy ever trod the quarter deck with such principles as you have and such habits as you exhibit. You will have to change your whole course of life, if you ever become a man."

"My father left me and went on deck. I was stunned by the rebuke and overwhelmed with mortification. A poor, miserable, drunken sailor before the mast! Be kicked and cuffed about the world and die in fever hospital. That is to be my fate, though I. I'll change my life at once. I'll never utter another oath, never drink another drop of liquor and never gamble. That act was the turning point in my destiny.

Conscience in some people is the instinct that warns against doing things that might turn out unprofitably.

We think none the less of a man's greatness if he humbly gives the credit for it to God.

The wise man takes whatever comes and studies how to extract good from it.—Palmer.

MECCA WINS HECTIC CONTAINER CONTEST

Mel Mettler, whose misplays contributed much to the Container Corporation victory over the Mecca restaurant in the first half of the softball league, gained sweet revenge Friday evening when he acted as manager of the Meccas in Tum Robinson's absence and led the team to an 11-5 victory. The game was a hectic one with arguments marring the play.

As a result of one of the arguments, Manager Roy Norris of the Containers, posted notice that he is protesting on a decision of umpire Sherman Barr, who called Eddie Watson out after he allegedly failed to return to a bag before advancing a base when a wild throw resulted after a caught fly ball. Barr ruled Watson did not return; the strawboard players including Watson argued that he did; the crowd was divided. Barr's ruling stood.

TIED AT 3-ALL

The score was three-all at the time and the Containers from then on were a beaten aggregation allowing the Mecca to score three in the seventh Stevens' error on an assist at second base paving the way. The Mecca added five in the ninth with George Vlerebome protecting his lead.

Where the straw-board committed only one error against the Circleville Oils the night before they were guilty of no less than 10 Friday evening and a couple more could have been scored if the scorer had been closer on ground balls misplayed in the outer garden. The Mecca misplayed five times.

The Containers, outscored, outhit the Mecca nine 14 to 10.

The Mecca scored in the first inning on Wilson's walk, a fielder's choice, Trimmer's error on a high throw, and singles by M. Davis and E. Radcliff.

Wilson's single, Hegele's throw which went into center field on Wefler's grounder and J. Davis' fly to center gave the restaurant men another in the fifth but the strawboard went ahead one run in their half.

Watson started it by beating out an infield hit. Trimmer lined a legitimate single to left field but when it scooted past Wilson it went for the circuit. After G. Brungs flied out Whaley started it over again with a single. Stevens walked and Brannon singled Whaley home. W. Brungs popped to Kline but Strawser walked filling the hassocks. Hegele's best effort was a fly to right field.

TRIPLE HELPS

The Mecca tied it in the sixth on Judy Gordon's triple to the automobiles in left field after two were out and G. Brungs erred on E. Radcliff's slow roller.

Then came the Container half of the sixth. Watson and Trimmer struck off with singles. G. Brungs flied to M. Davis at short and in his excitement Davis threw the ball high over Kline's head at first base. When the ball had returned to play the Mecca infield called for the leather and touched second base after which Umpire Barr called Watson out for not returning before he went to third. Trimmer had gone to second legitimately. This caused plenty of excitement. Whaley ended it popping to Kline.

The Mecca seventh saw Wilson safe on Trimmer's error, advancing to second on Hickey's single. J. Davis forced Wilson at third and Kline rolled to Whaley. With an easy force and a possible double in front of him Stevens dropped Whaley's assist leaving Hickey score and in the excitement J. Davis also crossed the plate with Kline going to second. Merle Davis singled Kline home to tally the third run.

The Containers got one in the eighth to make it 6-4 but the Mecca counted five in the ninth on singles by J. Davis, Kline and Gordon, Vlerebome's double and two infield errors.

The first half champs counted in the ninth but that was not enough.

Dade and Barr were the umpires.

COUNTRY CLUB TENNIS MATCH STARTS TODAY

16 Players Take Part In Elimination; Finals On August 26th.

A tennis tournament of much interest started this afternoon at the Pickaway Country club with 16 persons taking part. The first round matches must be played off not later than Aug. 12, the second a week later, the third prior to Aug. 26 and the finals will be played Sunday, Aug. 26, at 3 p. m.

All the preliminary matches will be best two sets out of three with the finals to be three out of five.

The pairings follow:

UPPER BRACKET

Sterling Lamb vs. Harold Davis.
Link Mader vs. William Radcliff.
Tom Harman vs. Bishop Given.
Horace Gilmore vs. Art Phillips.

The winner of the Lamb-Davis match will play the winner of the Mader Radcliff contest for the right to play the winner of the Harman - Given and Gilmore-Phillips match to enter the finals.

LOWER BRACKET

Dave Jackson vs. Reed Shafer.
David May vs. Ted Steele.
John Mason vs. Burn Jones.
Tom Renick vs. Tom Brunner.

The winner of the Jackson-Shafer match plays the victor in the May-Steele contest and the winner of the Mason-Jones contest plays the survivor of the Renick-Brunner fray in order to get into the finals.

The new tennis courts at the Country club have added a real feature to the club's popularity. They are busy practically all the time. It is hoped that some tennis talent good enough to provide Circleville with entries in all-star tournaments in central Ohio can be developed.

A tournament of this sort is a good way to develop interest.

BOOK NIGHT GAME FOR BIRDS-MILLERS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—Two night games in place of the one originally scheduled will be played next week by the Columbus Red Birds President George M. Trautman announced today. The finale of the Minneapolis series, originally scheduled to be played Tuesday, has been moved to 8:30 p. m. under the Red Birds' floodlights.

On Thursday night, the Birds and Milwaukee will meet in a feature game which will find the Improved Order of Red Men participating in a special program.

Besides the two night games, the coming week will offer many other interesting features. Sunday the Red Birds and the Millers are scheduled for a doubleheader with the first game starting at 1:30 while Monday the two teams meet in a special Ladies Day matinee. All Ladies are to be admitted on payment of the customary service charge, while bargain prices will prevail for all other seats. No bleacher seats will be sold since all grandstand ducats are available at 40c.

Following the custom on Ladies Day this season, California Bud Teachout will be the official host. Pictures of the southpaw pitcher will be given every lady attending while he will participate in the special awards made to patrons on Ladies Day.

Following the night game Tuesday, Milwaukee will open here in an afternoon affair Wednesday. This is to be another Future Fanette day and all girls 16 years of age or under are admitted without charge. Friday is just a ball game with the Birds and the heavy-hitting Brewers arguing about the first division standing in an afternoon game. A single game Saturday afternoon will close the Milwaukee series. Following this game, members of the Knot Hole Gang will participate in the city championship in accuracy throwing, base running and distance throwing.

GOLFERS TO WASHINGTON

Pickaway Country Club golfers journey to Washington C. H., Wednesday, August 8th, to play a return match with members of the Washington C. H. club.

The local players were defeated when the match was played here earlier in the season and they are hopeful of turning the tables on their opponents next week.

Members who can make the trip are requested to sign up at the caddy house.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

MANAGERS OF THE SOFTball teams will meet Monday immediately after the ball game to decide the Container Corporation protest, President Frank Lynch announced Saturday—The meeting will be in The Herald office * * *

The protest filed by the Containers is another in which an umpire's judgment on a play is involved * * * The Second Guesser contends there can be no protest of an ump's ruling on a play that involves only his own judgment—If a technicality of the rules was involved that would be something else * * *

Here is the rule as printed in Official Softball rules:

"There shall be no appeal from any decision of the umpires on the ground that he was not correct in his decision that a batted ball was foul or fair, that a base-runner was out or safe, a pitched ball was a ball or strike, or on any other decision involving accuracy or judgment; nor shall any decision of an umpire be reversed unless he be convinced that it was a mis-interpretation of one of these rules * * *

Next week's schedule includes:
Monday, Mecca restaurant vs. Given Oils.
Tuesday, Circleville Oils vs. Purina Chows.
Wednesday, Mecca restaurant vs. Eshelman Feeds.

It is probable there will be a fat and skinny man's game next week * * *

THE REPORT PRINTED BY Bob Hooey in Friday's Ohio State Journal that Billy Myers and Kenny O'Dea, infielder and catcher, will be sold this year, is easy to believe especially since Hooey recounted that the Cardinal organization is in need of finances * * *

Myers, who started the season slowly, has developed into a great shortstop; at least a few recent games have shown that—O'Dea is no great guns yet as a catcher but we believe he looks as good as Bill Delancey did this time a year ago—Both it is believed will draw pretty good prices on the open market * * * One sample of allowing a player in the Cardinal system to get outside, however, was shown Thursday when Big Bill Lee, who was sold to Chicago Cubs for money alone, blanked the Cardinals * * * Had Branch Rickey know that Walker, Hallahan and Haines were going to fail him this year he would have kept Lee regardless of the money involved * * *

The Cardinals have two winning pitchers this year; the Dean brothers * * *

A look around the various circuits finds the Cards in third, Rochester in the same spot and Columbus fighting for second * * * Greensboro, Elmira and Houston are all next to last in their respective leagues * * *

BIRDS START LAST EFFORT

If They Fall Before Minneapolis They Can Kiss Pennant Good-bye.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—The Columbus Red Birds, who brought their winning streak to six straight yesterday by defeating the St. Paul club, 14 to 8, today were to throw themselves against the league-leading Minneapolis Millers in what everybody insisted would be a crucial series.

Columbus took undisputed hold on third place by the win yesterday as Milwaukee split a double header with Indianapolis giving the Birds a half game lead as Milwaukee was marked up with a loss.

Minneapolis was three full games ahead of the Birds as the series opened today. Indianapolis in second place was only one-half a game ahead of the Columbus club. And Milwaukee, in fourth position, was only a half game behind the Red Birds.

Whatever happens, there apparently is bound to be some fireworks in the American association during the next few days. Meanwhile, Toledo struggled along in seventh place on the wrong end of an 8 to 2 score in a game with the Minneapolis Millers yesterday.

MILLER WHIPS PAUL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 4.—Freddie Miller, NBA featherweight champion, last night demonstrated that he has lost none of the cunning which won him his title from Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, N. Y., two years ago.

In a slashing 10 round encounter between the champion and the former champion, in which the title was not at stake, Miller, who hails from Cincinnati, O., won the nod of Referee Al Roth.

Paul had a three-quarters of a pound weight advantage coming into the ring at 128¾ pounds.

The bout drew a record number of movie celebrities.

George Raft, who figured in a round of fisticuffs in Hollywood yesterday, also was on hand. He was accompanied by a stunning blonde, who could not be identified.

Up to the Voters

AMERICANS who complain of bad government and high taxes seldom take the time to analyze the situation in an effort to fix the blame.

Taxes are increased unreasonably because the people send to their legislative hall men and women who, for various reasons, have not at heart the interests of their constituents. The same thing applies as the cause of bad government generally.

The remedy is close at hand. It is for more interest to be taken by the public at large in public questions and all matters of government. Voters, however, as a class, usually are apathetic. They are slow to be aroused.

Danville, Ky., recently was the scene of an incident, unusual in that it showed that the voters had an active interest in the making of their laws. They hanged in effigy a legislator who had failed to keep his promise to vote against a sales tax proposal.

Were all legislators and other officials who forgot their campaign promises hanged in effigy, the countryside not only in Kentucky but in every other state would be dotted with such effigies. And it soon would develop that men elected to office would strive to keep their campaign promises. They would know that, otherwise they would be on the public pay roll for only one term.

The responsibility for good or bad government rests with the people.

A Summer to Talk About

HAD nature been outraged by the government's crop reduction program she could not have shown displeasure in more violent form than the heat wave and drouth which have been sweeping half the country bringing death to hundreds, waste to millions of acres and both thirst and hunger to herds of cattle.

Such havoc has been wrought with certain crops that the AAA, Secretary Wallace agrees, may have to do an about face and induce the farmers who have water and growing weather to increase their acreage to make up for an anticipated shortage.

Should the United States run short of wheat, corn and other staple crops the more fortunate farming sections will receive high prices for their crops and foreign lands having surpluses for disposal will find a ready market here.

"THE LONE WOLF'S SON"

by LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

CHAPTER XLII

With his free hand then disengaging the arm from the stand of another instrument that bore a dial-device, Lanyard signaled Crane's number—but without releasing any one of the trio from the grasp of his attention.

"Is that you, my friend?" he presently hailed. "But how good it is to hear your voice again! What would I ever do without you! Here am I with three desperate characters on my hands, and no idea what to do with them—except to call on you for help and guidance."

"What's the joke?" Crane cautious drawl responded. "Are you kidding me or something?"

"You shall see for yourself, if you will be good enough to come at once and bring with you, or see that they follow you without delay, a sufficient number of policemen to take care of Madame Boyce and Mr. Isquith and his brother. But don't be longer than you must, if you would be sure of finding me still in command of the situation."

"I'll trust you—"

"But there is no knowing how soon henchmen of theirs, that have been already telephoned for, will turn up here in force. And I am facing odds of three to one already—"

"But your one, old-timer, is as good as any dozen!"

"I'm not so sure. . . . Arrange for an ambulance to call too, please, from the nearest hospital. The surgeon should come prepared to administer first aid to two drugged young people—"

"What's that?"

"My son and Fenno Crozier—"

"Good God! Where are you?"

Lanyard gave the address and the floor. The apartment of that ambitious Monsieur Isquith. Do you understand me?"

"Why, dern your flea-bitten hide!" Crane gave the groan of a man bitterly aggrieved. "I might have known it would be this way—if I let you out of my sight a single minute, you'd make me look like a correspondence-school dick on his first excursion to a sure-enough city!"

At five o'clock, or thereabouts, in the afternoon of the sixth day following the arrival of Michael Lanyard in New York, he rose from a desk in a room that might have been a study in an Eighteenth Century ducal hotel of the Faubourg St. Germain, but actually was his private office as mangaging director of the Fifth Avenue establishment of Delibes et Cie., Paris—got up with a smiling if a rather careworn countenance to greet a caller, a pretty, plump lady of a certain age who, in spite of bobbed hair that time had bleached clear of all color, didn't look it.

'My dear Mrs. Crozier!" he said over the hand that he bowed to salute, in a murmur so pitched that an innocent bystander might pardonably have looked twice to make sure that the lady's becoming and modish black costume was not mourning. "How very good of you to come to see me!"

"'Good' of me—fiddlesticks!" testily Fay Crozier retorted. "If I'm being good to anybody, it's to myself, though I'll be blessed if I can see what good I'm doing anybody by barging down here to see you, when I know, as I don't doubt you're thinking, if you knew any news you'd telephone it. It was just that I simply couldn't stand it another minute, sitting up there and twiddling helpless fingers while that pathetic husband of mine pattered about the house emitting woe-begone bleats like an old muttonhead that has mislaid its ewe-lamb!"

She sank into a chair, and extended an open hand.

"Give me a fag, for pity's sake, Lanyard; and quit making sad eyes at me—you remind me so much of Innes that I can't bear it! You haven't any news, of course?" she added, bending over the flame that Lanyard tendered to puff the tobacco afire. "If you had, you'd have shut me up long enough to tell it."

"I am sorry," he said, putting away his cigarette-case and lighter and sitting back. "Mr. Crane promised me he would call up as soon as he learned anything, and"—French habit spread both hands in eloquent disappointment—"nothing!"

"Oh—gosh!" the woman exploded. "If anything really has happened to those two precious infants, I'll never forgive myself."

"But surely you cannot blame yourself, madam—"

"I'd like to know why I can't," Fay transfixed Lanyard with indignant blue eyes. "I'd like you or somebody to tell me how I can escape blaming myself for being a greedy old woman. If I hadn't been a crazy fool about jewels to begin with, if I'd never set my covetous heart on owning those devilish emeralds, if I hadn't been rotten mean enough to try to cheat my country—if I'd had them shipped over with an honest declaration instead of trying to smuggle them in on my person—none of this agony would ever have happened."

"You must not think so harshly of yourself," Lanyard deprecated. "After all, what you did was merely to prove yourself as human as you are charming."

"Many thanks; but pretty speeches won't put me in good humor with myself today. When I think what a goof I've been, taking it for granted, just because that wretch of an Isquith and his crew were in jail, that we'd heard the last of that business and everything was simply lovely—" She bent a morose glare on Lanyard. "Why didn't you tell me your friend Crane said Isquith had such powerful friends in the underworld that we might as well be prepared for a flare-back—some attempt to avenge his arrest?"

"I hoped, to tell the truth, he was drawing an exaggerated picture, and wanted to avoid alarming you without real reason—"

"Well! I've no doubt you meant well, but I wish you hadn't been so darn considerate. If I'd dreamed that anything like this would happen, I'd have stuck to Fenno like her own shadow, never have let her out of my sight a single minute. . . . What are you making that funny face about?"

"Forgive me, but I found the thought amusing—"

"That's most ungallant of you. If you think I'm not still spry enough to keep up with that chit—"

"I think it would take a bit of doing."

"The girl does go, I grant you, once she gets started. I admit it would be as good for me as a reducing diet." As Fay paused to give the thought a rueful smile, a chirp sounded under Lanyard's desk, and the lady had a start. "What's that—the telephone?"

"It might be Crane, reporting progress," Lanyard nodded as he took up the instrument at his elbow. But it was with a look of some vexation that he listened, interjecting in a faintly startled voice, "Who?" and ending with: "Oh, very well. Show him in, please."

With an apologetic look, he turned back from the telephone.

"I hope you don't mind. It's Monsieur Plon of the Sûreté, calling to take leave, I suppose. He's going home with the Navarre, I understand; and she sails tonight at midnight."

"I don't mind, of course—though I will say I wasn't infatuated with the creature, the horrid way he behaved to you, coming over."

"He was very kind to me in the upshot, however. We must not forget that. If he hadn't proved himself a fair man at heart, if he hadn't overridden the Captain and set me free, that night—"

His response to a tap on the door brought in a familiar, starveling, wizened shape tricked out in curious elegance, as for strolling of a Sunday in the Bois, in morning-coat with gray-striped trousers, varnished boots and spats, lemon-colored gloves, an ebony stick and a lustrous stovepipe topper.

"Ah, mon- ami!" he piped at sight of Lanyard, opening his arms; but in the next instant, discovering the handsomer presence, he caught himself up and subdued his transports, performing to admiration the Continental bow from the hips. "And Madame Crozier! But what pleasure! Figure to yourselves that one had no suspicion of such good fortune, that one would be permitted to—how do you say?—slay two birds with one rock."

"How is that, pray?"

"But it was my intention, naturally, to inquire of my friend Monsieur Lanyard where I could call on Madame Crozier to pay her, also my homage and felicitations."

"What is the man talking about? 'Felicitations!'" Fay Crozier cried.

"Upon the happy event of this day, madame—"

"Are you mad?" The lady indignantly bridled, and then, reminding herself that the agent of the Sûreté couldn't possibly know what had happened, made her manner more gracious. "But no, monsieur. I quite see that you do not understand—how should you?—that this is anything but a day when Mr. Lanyard and I can welcome any sort of felicitations. It is, to the contrary, for us a day of sad anxiety."

"Ah, madame! But what calamity can possibly have been visited upon you?"

"We are not yet sure, monsieur," Lanyard replied, "that it is truly a calamity. We merely do not know. It is since eleven o'clock this morning that Madame's daughter, Mlle. Fenno, left her home to do some shopping. She was to have returned in time for a luncheon that Madame was giving some friends. She did not. So far as we can ascertain, she visited none of the shops she was to have gone to, and did not call at the home of any of her friends. Mme. Crozier feels certain that, if nothing untoward had happened to her, if she had simply been detained, say by some unforeseen accident, she would have telephoned her mother to explain."

"Ah madame!" The Frenchman produced a most lamentable groan. "One's heart aches for you—"

"Nor is that all," Lanyard pursued. "My son, too, has disappeared. He left the shop here half an hour before noon, saying he had some affair to see to before luncheon. Nothing has been heard of him since. It is our fear that both young people have been made the victims of some scheme of vengeance plotted by such members of the Bellamy mob as have thus far avoided arrest."

"But that puts another light on it!" Plon protested, all at once the sympathetic, grieving friend no more. "If Monsieur Maurice disappeared at the same time, and the two kept you in the dark as to their intentions—it is simply that they were thoughtless, as young people preoccupied with the romance of life are apt to be. When you know the truth be sure you will forgive them."

"'The truth'?" Lanyard demanded. "What is this that you are so unfeelingly declining to tell us?"

"Shall I be a spoil-sport?" Plon expostulated. "But no. There is no need. I have indeed called in an auspicious hour, my friends!"

But nobody was listening to him now—for the door had unceremoniously been thrown open, and Fenno herself was on the threshold—Fenno transfigured by drinking deep of the joy of life and its beauty—with Maurice showing a face all happy over her shoulder.

"Mother! What luck to find you here!" The girl fairly threw herself into her parent's arms. "We were on our way home to tell you, and only stopped in for a minute to tell"—she looked round impishly to Lanyard and flung out a hand to him—"to tell Father! We've been out of town all day—such a divine day—motoring up to Connecticut to get married."

"Married!'" Fay Crozier gasped.

"And we're sailing tonight for a honeymoon to France. Say you forgive us and—bless us."

"It was that, you comprehend, Plon put in, "that brought me up here to tender my felicitations, Mme. Crozier, and you, monsieur, my friend! When I saw that the bridal suite on the Navarre had been booked for Monsieur and Madame Maurice Lanyard, it was a natural conclusion, surely, to one who had seen what I had seen on the voyage over, that the bride would be Mademoiselle Fenno. And I had a happy inspiration," he brightly prattled on while Lanyard and Fay Crozier were recollecting their wits. "It seemed to me that a certain special wedding present to the bride was indicated, and I had the hope that she might be gracious enough to permit me—"

He conjured out of some recess in his garments a little box wrapped in fair white paper and bound with a white satin ribbon, and with a profound bow placed it in Fenno's hand.

"But, monsieur," she breathlessly protested, "this is too good of you!"

"Not so good of me as it will be of you, madame, to accept."

"But how wonderful!"

The ruby ring of the Rajah of Ladore blazed on the white velvet bed of the box that Fenno had opened.

"But before you do me so much honor, madame, let me tell you a secret." Plon impishly chuckled. "That ring you see there was not come by honestly. That is the truth, madame. It is a souvenir of my first and last step aside from the ways of legal honesty. Yet I am sure your father-in-law will tell you, too, that you need not hesitate to take it from me—there could be no more fitting wedding present for the bride of the Lone Wolf's son."

"Pardon, monsieur," Maurice interposed. "There is a small mistake there. Forgive me if I venture to correct you." He crossed to his father and took his arm. "The Lone Wolf's son no more, monsieur—but M. Michael Lanyard's."

A Factor in Health of Infants

Dr. Copeland Advises Young Mothers in the Care of Babies

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

ON MY farm in the country is a pool where the children and young folks of the neighborhood come to swim every hot day in summer. Not long ago I sauntered down to witness the sport and found my daughter-in -law and five of her friends, all young mothers.

They had their children, a total of seven youngsters, from two months of age to four years. Under the old apple tree these youngsters were sheltered from the merciless sun while the mothers swam in the pool. Pretty soon I found myself the center of an interesting group, eager to ask questions about infant care and child health.

I asked the mothers to name the most urgent problem with which they have to deal in taking care of their little ones. With one accord it was agreed that occasional, or more or less permanent constipation of the babies gave them more concern than anything else, except severe acute illness, of course.

There is no doubt this ailment is an important factor in infant life. The presence of constipation means that the feeding is not right. Its correction is a matter of perfecting the diet.

It is the bottle fed infant that has trouble. Suiting the formula to the needs and digestive powers of the child is the problem and it is not an easy one to solve.

Diet Important

Cow's milk differs from human milk in that it is more concentrated and contains less sugar. For these reasons it has to be "modified" by diluting with water and adding sugar.

The kind and amount of sugar used has much to do with the creation or correction of constipation. Every infant specialist has his favorite formula. He may advise cane sugar, sugar of milk, old-fashioned brown sugar, sugar made of dextrose and maltose, or corn syrup. No matter which is used, if it is in excessive quantity, constipation is to be expected.

It is the experience of those who have tried it that constipated infants who have been getting cane sugar, will be greatly benefited by substituting equal parts of cane and old-fashioned brown sugar. In any event, if the bowel action is sluggish there must be a suspicion that the sugar mixture is wrong.

Sometimes prune juice will give relief. The common prunes are cooked without sugar. A teaspoon of the juice with a teaspoon of water, given occasionally between feedings will help a lot. If necessary two teaspoons of the juice to one of water will be more satisfactory.

If these simple measures fail to prove beneficial to your child, talk with your doctor. It is absolutely necessary that the formula shall be accurately made and his advice is needed in the individual case.

KNOW YOUR CANDIDATES

Probably to the surprise of many, one of the closest fights at the approaching primary will center around the race for the Democratic nomination for county treasurer, in which three well known local Democrats are taking part.

The three candidates are working feverishly, although quietly, and have been all over the county sounding out sentiment. All seem to be enthusiastic and sure of victory.

Two of the candidates, Earl L. Hoffman and Frank Anderson, have spent most of their lives on the farm, while the third, Robert G. Colville, worked for years as a partner in the Jeffries and Colville dry goods store here.

Here are short sketches of the candidates:

FRANK ANDERSON, 60 218 Watt-st, born near Clarksburg, December 21, 1873, son of Samuel and Louisa Anderson. He grew up on a farm and attended grade school. He later married. Served as a township trustee and member of the school board in Deercreek-twp and has been a livestock dealer for a number of years. He has recently been interested in settling estates, acting as an assignee in four cases. Mr. Anderson is married and has four children.

ROBERT G. COLVILLE, 401 E. Main-st, born in this city, a son of the late Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Colville. He attended Circleville high school and Wooster college, graduating from both. At an early age joined the late T. F. Jeffries in the partnership of the Jeffries and Colville store, where he spent a number of years. He is a member of the Circleville city school board of education, now acting as clerk. Was an unsuccessful candidate for treasurer four years ago. He is married and has five children.

EARL L. HOFFMAN, 51, 512 S. Court-st, the present incumbent, born in Washington-twp, October 10, 1883, a son of Isaiah and Emma Hoffman. Attended Washington-twp school and became interested in farming. He served as manager of the Pickaway Livestock Cooperative Association soon after the organization of the farm bureau. Has been a dealer in livestock for a number of years. Nominated and elected county treasurer in 1930 and 1932. Mr. Hoffman's campaign for re-election is based, he says, on the fact that he "is qualified by experience, pledging an economical administration and running on his past record."

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

The "talkie" version of "Sorrell and Son," Warwick Deeping's celebrated story of father love, which begins a three day showing Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre comes in answer to the wishes of the millions of men and women who cherish fond memories of the novel and the silent film which United Artists released nearly seven years ago.

In this newer version, produced in England by British and Dominions, H. B. Warner again plays the role of Stephen Sorrell, and it is reported that the present characterization is even more effective than the original, since to it this splendid actor brings not only the magic of his speaking voice, but also the thousand little touches one always longs to add to a piece of work once it is irrevocably completed.

One of the chief charms of both the silent and sound versions is their rigid adherence to the story. The "talkie" was adapted to the screen, in close association with Major Deeping, by Lydia Hayward, who so successfully adapted the Noel Coward musical "Bitter Sweet."

AT THE GRAND

John Boles' singing voice has several excellent opportunities in the songs that are logically woven into the story of the Fox romantic comedy, "Bottoms Up," coming to the Grand Theatre on Sunday for three days. The film also introduces a new voice, the charming soprano of "Pat" Paterson. The romance centers about these two.

Most of the comedy is supplied by Spencer Tracy, Herbert Mundin, Harry Green and Sid Silvers. The story brings out into the open the truism that you have to bluff Hollywood to win its favor. And thereby hangs the plot.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

SUPPORT MISS DUNGAN

When the democratic voters of Pickaway-co and the 11th congressional district go to the polls and vote on Tuesday, August 14th there is one candidate that they should not forget to vote for and that is Jemima Dungan.

Always a staunch Democrat she has done a splendid job for the party since being elected to her first term as committeewoman from the 11th district. During the last presidential campaign she organized all the counties in the district, appointed chairmen and committees that functioned throughout the campaign and was one of the mainstays in giving the party a splendid victory at the election.

She also attended the national convention at Chicago as an alternate and while there was again instilled with the spirit of democracy and worked unceasingly for Roosevelt and has been a strong supporter of the President since his election.

Her work was so appreciated by the other counties of the district that she has the unanimous endorsement of the executive committees of Pickaway, Ross, Fairfield and Hocking counties and has strong support in Perry-co.

One of her accomplishments during the last campaign was the organization of the younger members of the party and in her own county, Pickaway, she had an active glee club that was heartily received at many meetings during the campaign.

Her efforts and accomplishments during her first term certainly deserve recognition and she should receive the support of every county and re-election for a second term.

A DEMOCRAT,
Interested in the party.

Ickes' Quiet Campaign to Bring Visitors to Parks Shows Results

WASHINGTON —Tomorrow is big day for Honest Harold Ickes. Using the President of the United States as his chief sales attraction, he is selling the National Parks to the public as no other Secretary of the Interior . . . Ickes is a unique salesman. It is a stern, rockvisaged Ickes who talks about "hot oil" or attempted graft in the Public Works Administration. But it is a lyrical Ickes who talks about his National Parks —"the healing touch which nature holds in the forested places of the earth" . . . Ickes always has been a great nature lover, developed an important species of gladiolus.

When he became Secretary of the Interior he started a quiet nature-selling campaign, persuaded Jim Farley to issue special stamps for the ten largest National Parks, boomed the fact that the depreciated dollar made travelling cheaper at home.

As a result, Park visitors increased in the off-season this year 37 percent . . . Several years ago Ickes spent fifteen days riding horseback in Glacier National Park, will be able to show the President personally the Blackfeet Indian Reservation, the Continental Divide between the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers, and the buffalo jump-off where the Indians slaughtered their buffalos by forcing them to jump from the cliffs. Ickes also can assure his Chief that the Blackfeet by Mystic ritual have "purged" Two Medicine Valley of any evil influence in preparation for the visit of the Great White Father.

War Clouds

Stanley Baldwin's cool announcement that Britain's border is now the Rhine meant just one thing to State Department observers: the entente between France and Britain is now as complete as when the Kaiser invaded Belgium . . . As a matter of fact, France has given the British important air bases in northern France, from which they can unite against a German invader . . . The new military entente was arranged last month during the visit of the French Chief of Staff in London. His talks were eclipsed by the French Foreign Minister Barthou, but they were more important . . . The chief danger of hostilities in Europe is through a "preventive" war. The French General Staff has figured that it would be easier to check Germany now than five years hence. British leaders for the first time begin to concur in this. This is one of the chief developments of the new entente . . . An Austrian incident may give the necessary excuse.

$10,000 Jobs

Good news for Republicans. President Roosevelt has two $10,000 jobs to fill which require Republican appointees. One is on the HOLC, as successor to Walter Newton, the other on the RFC, to take the place of the late John J. Blaine.

Both posts will be filled at an early date . . . When sandy-haired Chairman Joseph J. Kennedy, of the SEC, was told that several Democratic Senators have privately urged Bill Borah to start a public subscription fund to pay off the $35,000 owed by the Democratic National Committee to Kennedy, the latter replied: "Now that is my idea of a swell suggestion. That debt is the slowest asset I have, and, believe me, I could use the money. By all means urge Senator Borah to go ahead. He has my warm approval."

The RFC saved a neat sum for the B. & O. Railroad when it agreed to take any part of the recent $50,000,000 bond issue which the bankers did not buy. The bankers had first demanded a 5 1-2 per cent interest rate from the B. & O. but with RFC backing they came down to 4 1-2 per cent . . . New Mexico's regular Republican organization has made its peace with Senator Bronson Cutting, militant liberal who bolted to Roosevelt in 1932 . . . Cutting's Progressive faction and the regulars have buried the hatchet, are united behind his re-election candidacy . . . A. F. of L. President Bill Green has come out for Wisconsin's youthful Senator Bob La Follette, running this year on a third party ticket . . . In a statement widely publicized in the labor press of the country, Green calls on the workers to return Young Bob to the Senate . . . P. L. Gassaway, "cowboy judge" of County, Okla., who recently defeated the veteran Representative Tom McKeown, Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, wears high-heeled boots, a 10-gallon hat, and has the voice of a hog caller.

ATLANTIC, Mass. — Enjoy things in moderation and live a long life was the opinion of Dr. Walter G. Kendall celebrating his 80th birthday. Dr. Kendall, famous cyclist, admitted that since he was 19 years old he has enjoyed "from four to five highballs every day."

LOST 20 LBS. OF FAT IN JUST 4 WEEKS

Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo. writes: "I'm only 28 yrs. old and weighed 170 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and furthermore I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know.

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at any drugstore—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back.

Italy Stands by as Austrian Revolt Spreads

Italian troops on Austrian border in Alps.

The map in the above layout locates the various points in Austria where Nazi forces and government troops waged fierce battles in a civil warfare, which gave indications of spreading, as an aftermath of the assassination of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss in a Nazi putsch to gain control of the government. While the nation rumbled in turmoil, Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy amassed 48,000 troops, fully equipped for war-time service, on the Austrian frontier.

ANNIVERSARY

among the world powers. The munitions supply has dwindled so low that for the past year the army's combat troops have had no ammunition allowance for target practice.

If the Austrian situation should develop into another World war and the United States was dragged in, this nation would have to rely for at least four months on a friendly ally for munition supplies or find itself virtually at the mercy of the enemy within six weeks.

If called upon to fight on a scale similar to that experienced in the World war, practically every branch of the army, including the air corps, infantry and artillery, virtually would run out of ammunition in about six weeks.

It is estimated that under present industrial mobilization plans it would take six months to convert commercial factories to a munition - manufacturing basis sufficient to meet the full-time requirements of the army.

ARSENALS INADEQUATE

Existing government arsenals, working full blast, could produce only eight per cent of the army's war time requirements.

Therefore, it was pointed out, during the transition of industry from a peace-time to a war-time basis, a period of about four months would elapse during which time this country would have to rely on some other nation for munitions supplies.

The army is lacking in almost every weapon of modern warfare.

That the Klan issue would be fought to a bitter finish was indicated when Colescott said he would issue a statement early next week.

Toledo—U. S. Senator Simeon D. Fess, 72-year-old Republican, continued his attack on the New Deal in a speech here by declaring that "within 12 months after his election, President Roosevelt has added 95,000 federal employes to the pay rolls and had established 52 commissions, more than any other president in history."

Youngstown-Clarence J. Brown, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, demanded revision of Ohio's public utility laws to speed decision in rate cases. Brown, in his speech, also charged that "honest relief work has been sacrificed to political expediency under the present Democratic administration."

HITS LOBBYISTS

Steubenville— Daniel Morgan, former Cleveland city manager, who also is seeking the Republican gubernatorial nomination, attacked "unscrupulous bank lobbyists and interests who employ them" in a campaign address here.

Columbus—John A. Elden, candidate for the same post as Brown and Morgan, pledged himself against increased taxes if he is elected. However, Elden said he would favor some increased taxes if they were enacted for the schools only.

Alliance—Frank G. Harrison, another Republican gubernatorial candidate, challenged his opponents to state their position on state relief policies. He said in part that "we must send relief back to the township trustees where it belongs."

Dayton — Ora B. Chapman, president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor, endorsed the candidacy of William G. Pickrel, Democratic gubernatorial candidate. He described Pickrel as "a friend of organized labor."

Youngstown—The second Ward Non-Partisan political club here endorsed the candidacy of Lt. Gov. Charles Sawyer for the Democratic nomination for Governor. Swayer was described as "public spirited, civic-minded, honest, loyal and trustworthy."

MORGAN-MASCHKE?

Columbus—C. Nelson Sparks, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, carried his campaign to the air by a radio broadcast to attack the candidacy of Morgan for the same post. He charged Morgan "was aligned, hook, line and sinker, with the Maschke crowd of Cleveland."

Other political candidates continued their campaigns by visiting old friends and aligning new support in many counties of the state. They made no speeches but contented themselves with personal talks to county and city political leaders.

"If Russia continues to indulge in a Machiavellian policy toward Japan and Manchukuo," Nichi Nichi warned "Japan will suspend all negotiations with the Soviet government and check all provocative moves by the Russians."

Russo-Japanese relations, which had improved in recent months, again became tense this week when the Soviet government rejected a proposal by Manchukuo, made through Foreign Minister Hirota as intermediary, for sale of Russian interests in the Chinese Eastern railway.

The C. E. R. Traverses Manchukuo and is the shortest route between western or European Russia and the Pacific. Its importance, both from the military and commercial standpoint, is inestimable.

The Manchukoans, the Soviet government announced, had offered only one-tenth the value of the Russian interest in the railway. They made a counter-offer which Hirota described as "fantastic" and he announced that in the future Moscow must deal directly with Manchukuo.

By Pat J. Kirwin

THAT one of the greatest feats of heroism recounted in the city's history took place near the old aqueduct on the Scioto river in the winter of 1838, when a laborer working in the Cradlebaugh tannery, a quarter of a mile away, heard the cries of seven drowning children and raced to the scene to make a thrilling rescue.

Here's the story:

Four sons of Jesse Richardson, also an employe in the tannery, who lived with his family in a little home on the west bank of the river, and three other children, walked out on the aqueduct one morning, soon after it had been rebuilt. There were a number of planks and timbers which belonged to the old pile bridge extending out from the aqueduct, and unmindful of the danger, the children walked off the timbers into 12 feet of canal water.

The river was swollen and a strong current raged through the waters, so the children were immediately swept down the stream, crying and screaming for help as they went along. The mother of the Richardson children happened on the scene, and frantic and helpless, began to scream for aid.

Her cries attracted the attention of John Beynt, who was busily employed in the Cradlebaugh tannery. He hurriedly left the scene, however, and racing with all his might, he went to the aqueduct, more than a quarter of a mile away, walked a narrow timber 450 feet long, suspended himself by the side of the trunk from one abutment to another, gained the western bank and jumped into the river.

In the meantime all of the children were a quarter of a mile down the stream, and almost miraculously none had been drowned. Beynt swam to the scene and grabbing two of the Richardson sons, raced to shore. By this time, a small canal boat came along and assisted in the rescue of the others. Three of the children nearly drowned, but with the aid of two physicians were soon revived.

Beynt, justifiably, was acclaimed as the town's hero for some time.

That the city's fiery Whig newspaper, The Independent American, of 1838, made the following comment on a bust of President Martin Van Buren, a Democrat, being placed in the capital library: "A marble bust of Martin Van Buren has been placed in the library of the Capitol. It would be well if a similar one were placed in the White House instead of the original."

THAT The Pickaway Magazine, a literary publication printed by several north-end youths, appeared in Circleville as a monthly beginning in October, 1901. According to a statement in the first issue, the publication was "owned, controlled and managed by Lloyd Jonnes, Clyde Hanna, Hughes and Sydney Van Ness and was printed on the Park-pl press." Subscription price was 50 cents per year and single copies were five cents each. The publication was a very interesting project and enjoyed a fairly good circulation for a time.

That instead of a gasoline tax to finance the repair and building of roads, taxpayers 100 years ago were forced to pay a road tax of 15 cents per $100 valuation. With this levy, only $2,600 was collected in Pickaway-co in 1834.

That the village of Millport, in Harrison-twp, was once a thriving center and in 1838 was termed "one of the busiest little places in the Scioto valley." Several years before the village had been laid out into lots and approximately 110 were sold in the summer of 1836. Situated on the Ohio canal, the village benefited from the flow of business along this line.

BOHNERT STATEMENT HITS CITY MONOPOLY ON COUNTY POSITIONS

DOUBLE PARKING NOW BOTHERSOME

The double parking situation on W. Main-st has again become bothersome. It was not long ago that a warning was issued that persons who insisted on double parking when there was an available space would be punished. Such parking practice has been observed quite often lately.

Much time has been lost and inconvenience caused because motorists have insisted upon such parking.

Asks Party to Scatter Nominations Throughout Pickaway

VOTERS DISPLEASED?

"80 Per Cent Here in 15 Years' Time"

Nathan C. Bohnert, of Monroe-twp, Pickaway-co's representative in the general assembly for the past four years, came to the front today with a statement concerning the coming primary that is causing considerable discussion in political circles.

The statement was circulated on printed matter signed by Mr. Bohnert.

The representative who classifies himself a "dirt farmer" does not seek renomination because of ill health.

Bohnert heads his statement: "A Timely Warning to The Democrats."

The complete statement, verbatim, follows;

EACH DEPENDANT

"Circleville owes nearly all of its commercial and material existence to Pickaway-co, and most of Pickaway-co depends on Circleville as a market for its products and a place to buy its necessities. Each is dependent on the other for its very existence and they should cooperate.

"Of the ten county offices to be filled this November, Circleville is asking for all, except county commissioner, which is a renomination for second term.

"Under the delegate system, and for a few years under the mandatory primary system, the leaders of the Democratic party, worked with an unselfish spirit to have the nominations scattered all over the county, and it was a rare occurrence for a Republican to be elected to a county office. For the past 15 years, 80 per cent of the nominations have been dropped in or right at Circleville, and note the increased success the Republicans have had and Circleville has furnished its share of disloyalty in every instance.

HAS NO GRIEVANCE

"I have no personal or political grievance against anyone in Circleville. I have been treated very fairly, under the circumstances, at all times that I have run for office. I am writing this from a party spirit standpoint, but there are hundreds of county Democrats that are expressing themselves as being tired of this treatment and the resentment is growing stronger every year.

"You may say that the country can combine and defeat the city for those Democratic nominations. That is very hard to do, even if there is a greater number of candidates in the city for county offices, because the city candidates are in closer touch with the country voter than the country candidates are with the city voter and the country voter, because of business and many other relations that cause almost every day contacts. The consequences are, that the city gets about all of the Democratic nominations which makes enough disgruntled Democrats to elect Republicans. It is the duty of our county executive committee and the duty of unselfish leaders of the party, to see that some of this injustice to the country at large is checked.

"There is not one office in the county a man's office or a woman's office, qualifications for the office being equal. In Pickaway-co, the county offices belong to the Democrats, and should be filled with Democrats, and a sure way to do this is to nominate well-qualified, good vote-getting candidates. Scatter the nominations to all parts of the county, and it will be a very rare case of a Republican being elected."

MANY THRONG TO SCIOTO-TP

George Hinton, Myrl Hinton, Win Pulling Prizes; Many Events Booked Today.

Another record-breaking crowd was expected to pour into Commercial Point Saturday, as the second day's program of its seventh annual home coming and fish fry got underway.

Several thousand persons swarmed the village yesterday and last night to enjoy the first day's festivities, but with a huge parade, big coon chase, quilt and flower show, horseshoe tournament, colt show and countless other contests scheduled for today, crowds were expected to flock into the Scioto-twp seat.

The scene was a bee-hive of county candidates as nearly all were present.

The horse pulling contest was the highlight of Friday's program and was witnessed with much enthusiasm. More than $80 was distributed in prizes to the winners in the two divisions, heavyweight and lightweight. Three veterinarians, Dr. Jones of Harrisburg, Dr. Spindler of Ashville, and Dr White, of Grove City, served as judges.

The horses were required to pull a mud boat loaded with sand, with a 14-foot chain serving as the connecting piece. The amount of sand loaded on the boat determined the strength of the horses and ultimately the winners.

Judges announced the following winners:

Heavyweight class, over 3,000 pounds, George Hinton, Lockbourne, R. F. D. 1, first; H. M. Beavers, Orient R. F. D. 1, second; and K. E. Dountz, Ashville, third.

Lightweight class, under 3,000 pounds, Myrl Hinton, Lockbourne, R. F. D. 1, first; Orin Neal, Ashville, R. F. D. 2, second, Clarence White, Harrisburg, third, and Charles Casto, Harrisburgh, fourth.

Jack Dempsey Daddy of Girl

Baby and Parents Both Doing Well, Business Manager Declares.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—Jack Dempsey's first born will not follow in his footsteps in the ring.

This fact was firmly established today when it was announced that the former heavyweight champion's wife had given birth to a seven and a half pound baby girl at Polyclinic hospital. Both Mrs. Dempsey, who was Hannah Williams, stage star, and the baby were reported doing well.

"And so is Jack," reported Max Waxman, Dempsey's business manager. "He took a lot of punishment, though. He was up all night pacing the floor. But he, too, is resting well now."

Dempsey had expressed the hope the baby would be a boy.

"If it is I'm going to match him with Gene Tunney's kid as soon as they are big enough," he said as he was walking up and down the hospital corridors.

After he learned he had become the father of a girl, the ex-champion quickly assured his friends that he was satisfied.

"Just so long as they are both all right I am satisfied," he said.

Relief Check Comes

The county auditor's office received a check for $1,296.17 from the state auditor's office Saturday to be used for direct relief purposes in the county during August.

This is part of the state relief commission's appropriation for the month.

REPORT HAMILTON TO BE AMBUSHED IN CHICAGO SOON

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.— John Hamilton's number is up.

The kill-crazy satellite of the late John Dillinger will cash in his checks within the next thirty days.

And the frowning, paunchy Hamilton will preferably not be taken alive.

From sources close to the department of justice these facts were learned today by International News Service.

It was also learned that Hamilton, wanted for murder, prison escape and banditry, will probably be ambushed in or near Chicago.

SUCCESSOR TO LEIST STUDIED

Democratic Chairman Does Not Seek Re-election, He Tells His Friends.

Declaration of C. A. Leist, local attorney, that he does not seek re-election as chairman of the Pickaway-co Democratic executive committee leaves the field wide open for the election of his successor, party leaders said Saturday.

Mr. Leist has been in poor health, and has been very busy with his law practice. The job, for which little thanks is received, takes "too much time," Mr. Leist has told friends. The past two years have been exceedingly trying ones for the chairman with recommendations to be made for jobs made available by the change in administration.

Mr. Leist is concluding his second term.

The procedure of selecting the executive committee in Pickaway-co is somewhat different than that in surrounding counties. Within ten days after the primary the successful Democratic candidates meet and study the list of executive committee members. Most of the members are usually renamed but often changes are made. The candidates then furnish the list to the newly-elected central committee where final appointment is made. The executive committee members then meet to organize by naming chairman, vice chairman, secretary and treasurer.

Members of the present executive committee include Mr. Leist, John S. Ritt, T. D. Krinn, J. W. Kirwin, Harry W. Moore, Richard Simkins, J. D. Hummel, E. S. Neuding, G. G. Adkins; John Bell, Roy White, T. B. Gephart, Walter Hedges, G. C. Cline, James List, W. E. Arnold, J. M. Tcotle, Jesse Pitt, Harry Briggs, John T. Dick, Adam Rueb, Turney Pontius, Melvin Armstrong, J. R. Hott, O. M. Beckett, J. B. Cromley, Adam Kuntz, and Ward Peck.

UNDERWOOD TO SPEAK

The Democratic Woman's club of Pickaway-co will hold its regular meeting Wednesday, Aug. 8, instead of Friday, Aug. 10 at the court house.

Congressman Mell G. Underwood will address the meeting and a number of state candidates have expressed their intention of attending.

The meeting is open to all Democratic men and women of the county.

HUEY IS ADAMANT

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 4.— An augmented force of national guardsmen, with more machine guns trained on the city hall, was the answer of U. S. Senator Huey Long and his political machine today to a court order demanding that the militia be disbanded.

To prevent possible seizure by the State troops the city administration strengthened its force of armed policemen stationed in the city offices.

Fear that some untoward act might bring an armed clash between the two forces caused an air of apprehension.

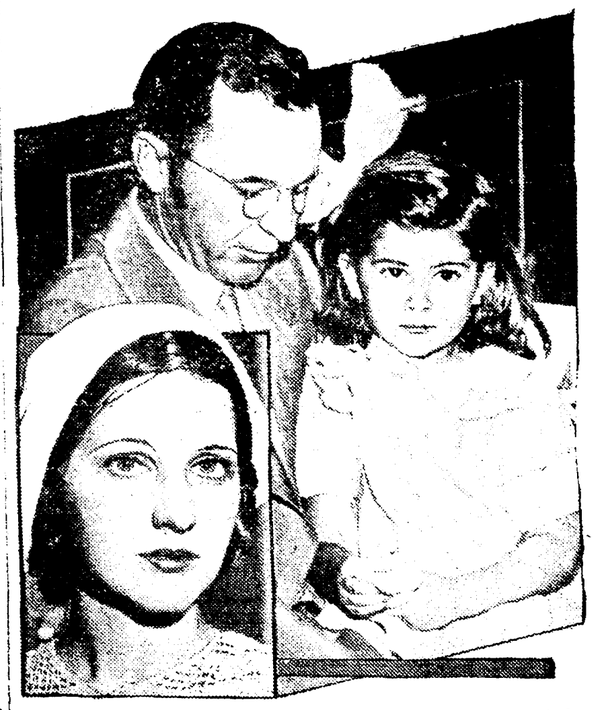
TRUCK, AUTO HIT

No one was injured at 7:50 p. m. Friday when a Strawser freight truck, being driven south on S. Court-st, collided with a car being driven north on the street by Neal Barton, 210 S. Court-st. The Strawser truck was turing east on Franklin-st when it hit the Barton car.

Mrs. Barton and her small child were in the husband's car, but all escaped injury.

Driver of the Strawer truck was Victor Graves, 3rd and Richsts, Columbus.

Beauty Denied Custody of Child



Losing her plea before the Oklahoma supreme court for custody of their child, Des Cyghes L'Amour, who was awarded to her husband, Thomas Gilcrease, oil magnate, above, Mrs. Norma Smallwood Gilcrease, inset, "Miss America" beauty winner in 1926, however, was affirmed in her demand that their daughter must not be taken to Europe.

DIXON TO TALK TO RED CROSS

Meeting Called Wednesday Evening by Frank Lynch, Chapter Chairman.

Frank A. Lynch, chairman of the Pickaway-co chapter of the American Red Cross, announced Saturday that an organization meeting will be held next Wednesday evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

The meeting is called for 7:30 o'clock.

F. C. Dixon, new field representative, is expected to attend the meeting and explain plans of the Red Cross for the coming winter.

All members of the organization are urged to attend.

TOKYO, Aug. 4.—The Japanese government is about to serve an "Ominous" warning on Russia, listing a chapter of "unfriendly" acts, the influential newspaper Nichi Nichi declared today.

Foreign Minister Koki Hirota and War Minister Gen. Hayashi are preparing to adopt a vigorous policy toward the Soviet government, the Nichi Nichi declared.

Japan, the newspaper asserted, will point out to the Soviet government:

KU KLUX KLAN TOUCHY ISSUE

Fate of Some Candidates May Depend On It; All Seekers Active.

By International News Service

With the Ku Klux Klan issue suddenly injected in the Ohio political campaign with the statewide primaries only 10 days away, candidates for a host of offices in the state today were making a whirlwind scramble for the ballots of Ohio's 2,000,000 voters.

Further developments in the Klan issue were promised while many political observers, including newspapermen who cover the capitol at Columbus, insisted that the fight over the Klan could decide the fate of many of the candidates.

HIGHLIGHTS LISTED

Highlights in the political campaign were:

DENMAN'S STATION ENTERED, ROBBED

By removing hinges from a front door and then loosening the latch, thieves broke into the filling station operated by Harry "Dick" Denman on Route 23, north of the city, early Saturday, and carried away an amount of merchandise.

A description of two men, believed to have committed the robbery, was obtained by Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell and broadcast over the highway patrol station. They were believed to have been riding in a 1928 Dodge coupe.

Merchandise reported taken included one Dunlop tire and tube, six quart cans of Sinclair oil, and four quart cans of Pennsylvania oil.

Anniversary Finds Nation In Weaker Position Than At World War's Opening

(Copyright, 1934, by International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 The twentieth anniversary of the start of the World War finds the American army in a relatively weaker position than it was shortly before the United States entered the European conflict.

This was disclosed today by a high ranking military chief attached to the war department general staff. A national defense survey confirmed his views.

It was learned in authoritative army quarters that, despite all the costly lessons learned about lack of preparedness in the world war, this country's munitions reserve has dropped so low it would not last more than six weeks if the United States had to fight on a scale comparable with that experienced in the last conflict.

LACKING MODERN GUNS

Furthermore, the army is almost totally lacking in modern rifles, tanks, field artillery, anti-aircraft guns and gas masks.

A deplorable low munition reserve and lack of modern army equipment has placed the United States seventh in military strength

DYNAMITE LOCATED ON RAILROAD USED BY THE PRESIDENT

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 4.—Eight sticks of dynamite with detonating caps and fuses set, four days ago on the right of way adjoining the railroad bed over which President Roosevelt's special train passed safely at 1 a. m. today was revealed by Sheriff G. G. Miles of Spokane.

Taking maximum precautions, Sheriff Miles declared he immediately informed secret service agents and posted a constant guard of six men near the spot where the dynamite was found.

The dynamite was discovered by a watch tower operator of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Co., two and a half miles southwest of Spokane.

CALVERT HELD ON 2 CHARGES

Harrison-Twp Man Indicted On Alleged Embezzlement of Son's Money.

DAVIS SENTENCED

Glenn Clark's Trial Postponed, Judge Says.

Berman Calvert, Harrison-twp, who was secretly indicted on two charges of embezzlement by the recent special grand jury, was arrested Friday and pleaded not guilty to both charges when arraigned before Judge J. W. Adkins.

Bond was fixed at $1,000 on each charge and he was committed to the county jail in default.

Calvert was indicted on charges in connection with the guardianship of his son, Franklin Gale Calvert. It is charged in one indictment that he embezzled approximately $350 from the son's estate and in the second charge he allegedly embezzled $150.

A trial date is expected to be set by Judge J. W. Adkins within the next two weeks.

BROTHERS GUILTY

Alfred and Gerald Davis, brothers, of Pickaway-twp, also indicted by the recent grand jury on charges of forgery, changed their former pleas of not guilty to guilty before Judge J. W. Adkins Friday, and the former was sentenced to serve one to 20 years in the Mansfield reformatory.

Gerald Davis was poroled for two years.

Alfred Davis was indicted on two counts while his brother was charged but with one count. The checks were given to the Funk grocery and J. C. Penney Co., this city.

Davis and Carroll Louden, 27, Miami-co, who also pleaded guilty to five indictments concerning several robberies in Ashville and was sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory, were taken there Friday by Deputy Sheriff Bob Armstrong.

TRIAL DELAYED

Trial of Glenn "Spikey" Clark, the reputed leader of the gang in the Ashville robberies, which was scheduled to begin in common pleas court Monday, has been postponed for several weeks, Judge Adkins announced Saturday.

U. L. Riegel, N. Court-st, who was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of driving while intoxicated, has not been arraigned as yet. He is represented by C. A. Leist.

Roy Grooms, this city, indicted on a charge of failing to provide for his child, furnished a property bond in common pleas court Saturday and was released from the county jail. Judge Adkins told Grooms Wednesday that if he did not furnish a property bond, he would be sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory.

Earl Smith was Grooms' attorney.

HINDENBURG'S WILL EVADES SEARCHERS

NEUDECK, Germany, Aug. 4.— President Paul Von Hindenburg's will cannot be found, although it has been searched for frantically, it became known today, and this circumstance may account for the government's delay in definitely announcing where he will be buried.

It is known the great field marshal made a will disposing of his modest estate, however. It is thought he made it privately and it must be found in his home. Dr. Otto Meissner, President Von Hindenburg's secretary of state, is understood to have searched repeatedly for the document, which he declares he is sure is in existence.

PLOT NAMES 5 RICH MEN; BARE THREAT

Extortionists Eye Doheny, Monnette, Pantages, Doyle, Gettle

POLICE SEEK CLUES

Note to Monnette Banker, Demands $60,000

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4.—Extortionists today threatened five of the wealthiest men on the Pacific coast.

E. L. Doheny, multi-millionaire oil magnate; Orra E. Monnette, wealthy banker; Alexander Pantages, millionaire theater owner; Jack J. Doyle, sportsman and oil man, and William F. Gettle, millionaire financier, who was kidnaped a few months ago were those threatened, police, sheriffs' investigators and federal agents revealed today.

Officers revealed that the principal plot was aimed at Monnette and that $60,000 had been demanded in a note which said:

"We have high-powered rifles, equipped with silencers. Watch out."

LETTERS RECEIVED

Headed by the banker the extortion note, officers said, listed the other four men, and it was learned that similar letters had been received by each of the other four ordering them to communicate with Monnette.

Although every effort was made to veil the case with the greatest secrecy it was learned that Monnette, a vice-president of the Bank of America here, received the first note Thursday.

Police also revealed that thus far neither Doheny nor Gettle had received the notes addressed to them.

Pantages received his note Thursday, but that delivered to Doyle did not arrive until Friday, it was said.

Investigators declared that none of the listed in the missives are "greatly concerned" but admitted that "steps have been taken to give them every safeguard."

Monnette, the officers said, was the only one who received the principal letter, with the threats and the demand for cash.

This letter said:

"We demand $60,000 in cash. It must be in old bills. $30,000 in $50 bills; $20,000 in $20 bills and $10,000 in $10 bills.

"You can communicate with the police if you want to but that will make it too bad for yourself and family."

It was then ordered that Monnette insert an advertisement in the classified columns of a morning newspaper to advice the extortionists that the letter had been received and Monnette was ready to comply with the demands.

At another point the threat note, which contained the clause concerning high-powered rifles read:

"We mean business."

It was revealed early today that the combined forces of the federal, county and city investigators were engaged in a hunt for the desperate gang.

IGNORED LETTER

Pantages, the officers revealed, had refused to take any notice of the letter sent him, and told investigators he had torn it up and thrown it away.

There was some indication that

HITLER TO EXTEND POWER IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—Hitler, supreme in life, is now preparing to extend his power over the German people after his death. He is going to choose his own successor.

He is the first modern dictator to do so. But he is the first modern dictator to become a Caesar.

For Germany has had a revolution during the last forty-eight hours just as important as the revolution that brought the national socialists to power. It may seem paradoxical but it is true that Hitler has not only staged a coup d'etat against the last remnants of the old Weimar state constitution but has made a revolution that will equally destroy national socialism as Germany has known it for the last eighteen months.

The Church Invites You

OUR NEED OF THE CHURCH

J. Sherman Wallace has said, "The church is the spiritual power house of the community. It calls together the people for worship. It teaches Christian truth, inculcates Christian ideals and develops Christian attitudes. It would be as hard to be truly religious without the church as it would be to be truly educated without the school. The ideals of Christ are slowly permeating the thought of the world. In national councils and international relations they must yet become supreme. Wherever the church has gone these ideals have triumphed. To preserve the highest ideals of any community we must make the church strong." Why not do your share, accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

SAN JOSE Prune and apricot growers will receive three cents a pound more on the first 1934 deliveries than they did last year, the California Prune and Apricot Association announced here. The advance was explained by reason of a shorter crop this year and an increase in prices during 1933.

Church Forum

How does worshipping in groups help the Christian?

There is a law of the mind and soul that the highest experiences must be shared; if one is alone and is charmed by a beautiful landscape there is a longing to have someone near to whom an expression of appreciation and wonderment can be made—the beautiful must be shared to be really enjoyed. With a vision of the wonders of God which produces natural praise and thanksgiving, one wants to seek the company of others to really enjoy such an experience most.

Inspiration does not come so readily when one is alone. It is when a group participates in expression of praise, devotion and thanksgivings, that inspiration is generated. The volume of song bursting out of hearts surcharged with the spirit of Christ moves one to higher planes of aspiration and endeavor. So the entire program of worship affects the individual.

A trickle of water cannot do much when millions of trickles come together and form a river, then something is accomplished. Worship brings individuals together and makes them as one soul. In public worship one discovers God, the other fellow and himself. It is in public worship that a man is brought face to face with what he ought to do in life and where the presence of God is recognized and experienced.

Lesson for August 5

ELISHA HELPS THE NEEDY

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 4:1-44.
GOLDEN TEXT—And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me. Matthew 25:40.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Elisha Helps a Woman in Need.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Elisha Helps Those in Need.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How We May Help Others.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Responsibility for Others.

I. Elisha Helps a Widow (vv. 1-7.)

1. Her distress (v. 1). Her husband, a godly man, was taken away by death, leaving a debt. A certain creditor was about to make her sons slaves because of the nonpayment of the debt. We are not told for what reason the debt was incurred. It may have been because of charitable deeds.

2. Her only possession (v. 2). A pot of oil was all that she had in her house. God can use what we possess, and to set that apart is the measure of our responsibility.

3. The oil miraculously increased (vv. 3-7). The meager supply of oil was so increased that the sale of it paid the debt. There was enough left for the sustenance of the family.

II. Elisha's Kind Deeds to the Shunammite Woman (vv. 8-37).

1. Her hospitality to Elisha (vv. 8-11).

a. Its occasion (v. 8). Observing that Elisha passed continually by her house in his journeys, she was moved with compassion toward him. She perceived that he was a man of God and was called upon to deny himself of many things. She determined, according to her ability, to supply his needs.

b. She fitted up a room for him (vv. 10, 11). She equipped this room with the necessary furniture to make it comfortable.

2. Elisha endeavors to repay her (vv. 12-17).

a. He offers to ask a favor of the king or head of the army (v. 13). This showed that Elisha had influence at the royal court. The woman's reply shows her truly to be a great woman. She would not change the calm and quiet of her home for a place even in the royal court.

b. Elisha announces the coming of a son to her (vv. 16, 17). Through inquiry he discovered that this woman was childless. This in that day was considered a great misfortune. He assured her that in about a year from that time she should experience the joy of motherhood.

3. The coming of sorrow to her home (vv. 18-21). The child which brought joy to her heart was suddenly taken away. The cause of his death was probably a sunstroke, for the heat of the sun at harvest time in that country is intense. When the child died she laid him upon the bed of the man of God. Her faith was such that she did not make preparation for burial but for restoration of life (Heb. 11:35).

4. The mother goes to Elisha (vv. 22-28). Happy is the one who in the days of prosperity and sunshine has so related himself to God and his prophets that help and sympathy can be given in time of trouble.

a. She took hold of Elisha's feet (v. 27). This was the eastern way of enforcing a petition.

b. She chided the prophet (v. 28). "Did I desire a son?" This implies that it would have been better not to have a child than to have lost him so soon.

5. The child restored (vv. 29-37).

a. Gehazi's fruitless errand (vv. 29-31). He hurried away and placed the prophet's staff upon the child's face, but it did not revive. Doubtless failure was due to his lack of faith.

b. Elisha's efficient service (vv. 32-37). He went to the house where the dead child was and did two things.

(1) He prayed (v. 33). He knew that no one but God could help so he closed the door, shutting all others out.

(2) He stretched himself upon the child (v. 34). He brought his warm body in touch with the cold body of the child. God blesses and saves through the warm touch of those who are in touch with him.

III. Elisha Feeding One Hundred Men (vv.) 42-44).

These hundred men were likely prophets of God. From the meager supply of twenty barley loaves and some ears of new corn these hundred men were fed. How like the deed of the Master in feeding five thousand with the barley loaves and small fishes.

Virtue in Abstinence

Admiral Farragut tells this story of his boyhood days: When I was ten years old I was with father on board a man-of-war. I had some qualities that I thought made a man of me. I could swear like an old salt, could drink as stiff a glass of grog as if I had doubled Cape Horn, and could smoke like a locomotive. I was great at cards and fond of gunning in every shape. At the close of dinner one day, father turned everybody out of the cabin, locked the door and said, "David, what do you mean to be?"

"I mean to follow the sea."

"Follow the sea! Yes, to be a poor miserable drunken sailor before the mast, be kicked and cuffed around the world and die in some fever hospital in a foreign land. No, David, no boy ever trod the quarter deck with such principles as you have and such habits as you exhibit. You will have to change your whole course of life, if you ever become a man."

"My father left me and went on deck. I was stunned by the rebuke and overwhelmed with mortification. A poor, miserable, drunken sailor before the mast! Be kicked and cuffed about the world and die in fever hospital. That is to be my fate, though I. I'll change my life at once. I'll never utter another oath, never drink another drop of liquor and never gamble. That act was the turning point in my destiny.

MECCA WINS HECTIC CONTAINER CONTEST

Mel Mettler, whose misplays ontributed much to the Container Corporation victory over the Mecca estaurant in the first half of the oftball league, gained sweet re-enge Friday evening when he act-d as manager of the Meccas in um Robinson's absence and led he team to an 11-5 victory. The ame was a hectic one with argu-ents marring the play.

As a result of one of the argu-ents, Manager Roy Norris of the ontainers, posted notice that he s protesting on a decision of um-ire Sherman Barr, who called iddie Watson out after he alleg-dly failed to return to a bag be-ore advancing a base when a wild hrow resulted after a caught fly all. Barr ruled Watson did not eturn; the strawboard players in-luding Watson argued that he did; he crowd was divided. Barr's uling stood.

TIED AT 3-ALL

The score was three-all at the ime and the Containers from then n were a beaten aggregation al-owing the Mecca to score three in he seventh Stevens' error on an ssist at second base paving the ray. The Mecca added five in the inth with George Vlerebome pro-ecting his lead.

Where the straw-board commit-ed only one error against the Cir-leville Oils the night before they ere guilty of no less than 10 Fri-ay evening and a couple more ould have been scored if the scor-r had been closer on ground balls isplayed in the outer garden. The ecca misplayed five times.

The Containers, outscored, out-it the Mecca nine 14 to 10.

The Mecca scored in the first in-ing on Wilson's walk, a fielder's hoice, Trimmer's error on a high row, and singles by M. Davis and . Radcliff.

Wilson's single, Hegele's throw hich went into center field on Vefler's grounder and J. Davis' fly center gave the restaurant men nother in the fifth but the straw-oard went ahead one run in their alf.

Watson started it by beating out n infield hit. Trimmer lined a gitimate single to left field but hen it scooted past Wilson it ent for the circuit. After G. rungs flied out Whaley started it ver again with a single. Stevens alked and Brannon singled haley home. W. Brungs popped Kline but Strawser walked fill-ng the hassocks. Hegele's best ef-rt was a fly to right field.

TRIPLE HELPS

The Mecca tied it in the sixth n Judy Gordon's triple to the utomobiles in left field after two ere out and G. Brungs erred on . Radcliff's slow roller.

Then came the Container half of ie sixth. Watson and Trimmer d off with singles. G. Brungs ned to M. Davis at short and in is excitement Davis threw the ball igh over Kline's head at first ase. When the ball had return-d to play the Mecca infield called or the leather and touched second ase after which Umpire Barr iled Watson out for not return-ng before he went to third. Trim-er had gone to second legitimate-y. This caused plenty of excite-ent. Whaley ended it popping Kline.

The Mecca seventh saw Wilson afe on Trimmer's error, advancing second on Hickey's single. J. avis forced Wilson at third and line rolled to Whaley. With an asy force and a possible double in ront of him Stevens dropped haley's assist leaving Hickey core and in the excitement J. avis also crossed the plate with line going to second. Merle Davis singled Kline home to tally the third run.

The Containers got one in the eighth to make it 6-4 but the Mecca counted five in the ninth on singles by J. Davis, Kline and Gordon, Vlerebome's double and two infield errors.

The first half champs counted in the ninth but that was not enough.

Dade and Barr were the umpires.

The pairings follow:

UPPER BRACKET

Sterling Lamb vs. Harold Davis.
Link Mader vs. William Radcliff.
Tom Harman vs. Bishop Given.
Horace Gilmore vs. Art Phillips.

The winner of the Lamb-Davis match will play the winner of the Mader Radcliff contest for the right to play the winner of the Harman - Given and Gilmore-Phillips match to enter the finals.

LOWER BRACKET

Dave Jackson vs. Reed Shafer.
David May vs. Ted Steele.
John Mason vs. Burn Jones.
Tom Renick vs. Tom Brunner.

The winner of the Jackson-Shafer match plays the victor in the May-Steele contest and the winner of the Mason-Jones contest plays the survivor of the Renick-Brunner fray in order to get into the finals.

The new tennis courts at the Country club have added a real feature to the club's popularity. They are busy practically all the time. It is hoped that some tennis talent good enough to provide Circleville with entries in all-star tournaments in central Ohio can be developed.

A tournament of this sort is a good way to develop interest.

BOOK NIGHT GAME FOR BIRDS-MILLERS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—Two night games in place of the one originally scheduled will be played next week by the Columbus Red Birds President George M. Trautman announced today. The finale of the Minneapolis series, originally scheduled to be played Tuesday, has been moved to 8:30 p. m. under the Red Birds' floodlights.

On Thursday night, the Birds and Milwaukee will meet in a feature game which will find the Improved Order of Red Men participating in a special program.

Besides the two night games, the coming week will offer many other interesting features. Sunday the Red Birds and the Millers are scheduled for a doubleheader with the first game starting at 1:30 while Monday the two teams meet in a special Ladies Day matinee. All Ladies are to be admitted on payment of the customary service charge, while bargain prices will prevail for all other seats. No bleacher seats will be sold since all grandstand ducats are available at 40c.

Following the custom on Ladies Day this season, California Bud Teachout will be the official host. Pictures of the southpaw pitcher will be given every lady attending while he will participate in the special awards made to patrons on Ladies Day.

Following the night game Tuesday, Milwaukee will open here in an afternoon affair Wednesday. This is to be another Future Fanette day and all girls 16 years of age or under are admitted without charge. Friday is just a ball game with the Birds and the heavy-hitting Brewers arguing about the first division standing in an afternoon game. A single game Saturday afternoon will close the Milwaukee series. Following this game, members of the Knot Hole Gang will participate in the city championship in accuracy throwing, base running and distance throwing.

GOLFERS TO WASHINGTON

Pickaway Country Club golfers journey to Washington C. H., Wednesday, August 8th, to play a return match with members of the Washington C. H. club.

The local players were defeated when the match was played here earlier in the season and they are hopeful of turning the tables on their opponents next week.

Members who can make the trip are requested to sign up at the caddy house.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

MANAGERS OF THE SOFTball teams will meet Monday immediately after the ball game to decide the Container Corporation protest, President Frank Lynch announced Saturday—The meeting will be in The Herald office * * *

The protest filed by the Containers is another in which an umpire's judgment on a play is involved * * * The Second Guesser contends there can be no protest of an ump's ruling on a play that involves only his own judgment—If a technicality of the rules was involved that would be something else * * *

Here is the rule as printed in Official Softball rules:

"There shall be no appeal from any decision of the umpires on the ground that he was not correct in his decision that a batted ball was foul or fair, that a base-runner was out or safe, a pitched ball was a ball or strike, or on any other decision involving accuracy or judgment; nor shall any decision of an umpire be reversed unless he be convinced that it was a mis-interpretation of one of these rules * * *

Next week's schedule includes:

Monday, Mecca restaurant vs. Given Oils.

Tuesday, Circleville Oils vs. Purina Chows.

Wednesday, Mecca restaurant vs. Eshelman Feeds.

It is probable there will be a fat and skinny man's game next week * * *

Myers, who started the season slowly, has developed into a great shortstop; at least a few recent games have shown that—O'Dea is no great guns yet as a catcher but we believe he looks as good as Bill Delancey did this time a year ago—Both it is believed will draw pretty good prices on the open market * * * One sample of allowing a player in the Cardinal system to get outside, however, was shown Thursday when Big Bill Lee, who was sold to Chicago Cubs for money alone, blanked the Cardinals * * * Had Branch Rickey know that Walker, Hallahan and Haines were going to fail him this year he would have kept Lee regardless of the money involved * * *

The Cardinals have two winning pitchers this year; the Dean brothers * * *

A look around the various circuits finds the Cards in third, Rochester in the same spot and Columbus fighting for second * * * Greensboro, Elmira and Houston are all next to last in their respective leagues * * *

BIRDS START LAST EFFORT

If They Fall Before Minneapolis They Can Kiss Pennant Good-bye.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—The Columbus Red Birds, who brought their winning streak to six straight yesterday by defeating the St. Paul club, 14 to 8, today were to throw themselves against the league-leading Minneapolis Millers in what everybody insisted would be a crucial series.

Columbus took undisputed hold on third place by the win yesterday as Milwaukee split a double header with Indianapolis giving the Birds a half game lead as Milwaukee was [illegible] loss.

Minneapolis was [illegible] games ahead of the Birds as the series opened today. Indianapolis in second place was only [illegible] a game ahead of the Columbus club. And Milwaukee, in fourth position, was only a half game behind the Red Birds.

Whatever happens, there apparently is bound to be some fireworks in the American association during the next few days. Meanwhile, Toledo struggled along in seventh place on the wrong end of an 8 to 2 score in a game with the Minneapolis Millers yesterday.

MILLER WHIPS PAUL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 4.—Freddie Miller, NBA featherweight champion, last night demonstrated that he has lost none of the cunning which won him his title from Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, N. Y., two years ago.

In a slashing 10 round encounter between the champion and the former champion, in which the title was not at stake, Miller, who hails from Cincinnati, O., won the nod of Referee Al Roth.

Paul had a three-quarters of a pound weight advantage coming into the ring at 128¾ pounds.

The bout drew a record number of movie celebrities.

George Raft, who figured in a round of fisticuffs in Hollywood yesterday, also was on hand. He was accompanied by a stunning blonde, who could not be identified.

Up to the Voters

AMERICANS who complain of bad government and high taxes seldom take the time to analyze the situation in an effort to fix the blame.

Taxes are increased unreasonably because the people send to their legislative hall men and women who, for various reasons, have not at heart the interests of their constituents. The same thing applies as the cause of bad government generally.

The remedy is close at hand. It is for more interest to be taken by the public at large in public questions and all matters of government. Voters, however, as a class, usually are apathetic. They are slow to be aroused.

Danville, Ky., recently was the scene of an incident, unusual in that it showed that the voters had an active interest in the making of their laws. They hanged in effigy a legislator who had failed to keep his promise to vote against a sales tax proposal.

Were all legislators and other officials who forgot their campaign promises hanged in effigy, the countryside not only in Kentucky but in every other state would be dotted with such effigies. And it soon would develop that men elected to office would strive to keep their campaign promises. They would know that, otherwise they would be on the public pay roll for only one term.

The responsibility for good or bad government rests with the people.

A Summer to Talk About

HAD nature been outraged by the government's crop reduction program she could not have shown displeasure in more violent form than the heat wave and drouth which have been sweeping half the country bringing death to hundreds, waste to millions of acres and both thirst and hunger to herds of cattle.

Such havoc has been wrought with certain crops that the AAA, Secretary Wallace agrees, may have to do an about face and induce the farmers who have water and growing weather to increase their acreage to make up for an anticipated shortage.

Should the United States run short of wheat, corn and other staple crops the more fortunate farming sections will receive high prices for their crops and foreign lands having surpluses for disposal will find a ready market here.

"THE LONE WOLF'S SON"
by LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

CHAPTER XLII

With his free hand then disengaging the arm from the stand of another instrument that bore a dial-device, Lanyard signaled Crane's number—but without releasing any one of the trio from the grasp of his attention.

"Is that you, my friend?" he presently hailed. "But how good it is to hear your voice again! What would I ever do without you! Here am I with three desperate characters on my hands, and no idea what to do with them—except to call on you for help and guidance."

"What's the joke?" Crane cautious drawl responded. "Are you kidding me or something?"

"You shall see for yourself, if you will be good enough to come at once and bring with you, or see that they follow you without delay, a sufficient number of policemen to take care of Madame Boyce and Mr. Isquith and his brother. But don't be longer than you must, if you would be sure of finding me still in command of the situation."

"I'll trust you—"

"But there is no knowing how soon henchmen of theirs, that have been already telephoned for, will turn up here in force. And I am facing odds of three to one already—"

"But your one, old-timer, is as good as any dozen!"

"I'm not so sure. . . . Arrange for an ambulance to call too, please, from the nearest hospital. The surgeon should come prepared to administer first aid to two drugged young people—"

"What's that?"

"My son and Fenno Crozier—"

"Good God! Where are you?"

Lanyard gave the address and the floor. The apartment of that ambitious Monsieur Isquith. Do you understand me?"

"Why, dern your flea-bitten hide!" Crane gave the groan of a man bitterly aggrieved. "I might have known it would be this way—if I let you out of my sight a single minute, you'd make me look like a correspondence-school dick on his first excursion to a sure-enough city!"

At five o'clock, or thereabouts, in the afternoon of the sixth day following the arrival of Michael Lanyard in New York, he rose from a desk in a room that might have been a study in an Eighteenth Century ducal hotel of the Faubourg St. Germain, but actually was his private office as mangaging director of the Fifth Avenue establishment of Delibes et Cie., Paris—got up with a smiling if a rather careworn countenance to greet a caller, a pretty, plump lady of a certain age who, in spite of bobbed hair that time had bleached clear of all color, didn't look it.

'My dear Mrs. Crozier!" he said over the hand that he bowed to salute, in a murmur so pitched that an innocent bystander might pardonably have looked twice to make sure that the lady's becoming and modish black costume was not mourning. "How very good of you to come to see me!"

"'Good' of me—fiddlesticks!" testily Fay Crozier retorted. "If I'm being good to anybody, it's to myself, though I'll be blessed if I can see what good I'm doing anybody by barging down here to see you, when I know, as I don't doubt you're thinking, if you knew any news you'd telephone it. It was just that I simply couldn't stand it another minute, sitting up there and twiddling helpless fingers while that pathetic husband of mine pattered about the house emitting woe-be-gone bleats like an old muttonhead that has mislaid its ewe-lamb!"

She sank into a chair, and extended an open hand.

"Give me a fag, for pity's sake, Lanyard; and quit making sad eyes at me—you remind me so much of Innes that I can't bear it! You haven't any news, of course?" she added, bending over the flame that Lanyard tendered to puff the tobacco afire. "If you had, you'd have shut me up long enough to tell it."

"I am sorry," he said, putting away his cigarette-case and lighter and sitting back. "Mr. Crane promised me he would call up as soon as he learned anything, and"—French habit spread both hands in eloquent disappointment—"nothing!"

"Oh—gosh!" the woman exploded. "If anything really has happened to those two precious infants, I'll never forgive myself."

"But surely you cannot blame yourself, madam—"

"I'd like to know why I can't." Fay transfixed Lanyard with indignant blue eyes. "I'd like you or somebody to tell me how I can escape blaming myself for being a greedy old woman. If I hadn't been a crazy fool about jewels to begin with, if I'd never set my covetous heart on owning those devilish emeralds, if I hadn't been rotten mean enough to try to cheat my country—if I'd had them shipped over with an honest declaration instead of trying to smuggle them in on my person—none of this agony would ever have happened."

"You must not think so harshly of yourself," Lanyard deprecated. "After all, what you did was merely to prove yourself as human as you are charming."

"Many thanks; but pretty speeches won't put me in good humor with myself today. When I think what a goof I've been, taking it for granted, just because that wretch of an Isquith and his crew were in jail, that we'd heard the last of that business and everything was simply lovely—" She bent a morose glare on Lanyard. "Why didn't you tell me your friend Crane said Isquith had such powerful friends in the underworld that we might as well be prepared for a flare-back—some attempt to avenge his arrest?"

"I hoped, to tell the truth, he was drawing an exaggerated picture, and wanted to avoid alarming you without real reason—"

"Well! I've no doubt you meant well, but I wish you hadn't been so darn considerate. If I'd dreamed that anything like this would happen, I'd have stuck to Fenno like her own shadow, never have let her out of my sight a single minute. . . . What are you making that funny face about?"

"Forgive me, but I found the thought amusing—"

"That's most ungallant of you. If you think I'm not still spry enough to keep up with that chit—"

"I think it would take a bit of doing."

"The girl does go, I grant you, once she gets started. I admit it would be as good for me as a reducing diet." As Fay paused to give the thought a rueful smile, a chirp sounded under Lanyard's desk, and the lady had a start. "What's that—the telephone?"

"It might be Crane, reporting progress," Lanyard nodded as he took up the instrument at his elbow. But it was with a look of some vexation that he listened, interjecting in a faintly startled voice, "Who?" and ending with: "Oh, very well. Show him in, please."

With an apologetic look, he turned back from the telephone.

"I hope you don't mind. It's Monsieur Plon of the Sûreté, calling to take leave, I suppose. He's going home with the Navarre, I understand; and she sails tonight at midnight."

"I don't mind, of course—though I will say I wasn't infatuated with the creature, the horrid way he behaved to you, coming over."

"He was very kind to me in the upshot, however. We must not forget that. If he hadn't proved himself a fair man at heart, if he hadn't overridden the Captain and set me free, that night—"

His response to a tap on the door brought in a familiar, starveling, wizened shape tricked out in curious elegance, as for strolling of a Sunday in the Bois, in morning-coat with gray-striped trousers, varnished boots and spats, lemon-colored gloves, an ebony stick and a lustrous stovepipe topper.

"Ah, mon- ami!" he piped at sight of Lanyard, opening his arms; but in the next instant, discovering the handsomer presence, he caught himself up and subdued his transports, performing to admiration the Continental bow from the hips. "And Madame Crozier! But what pleasure! Figure to yourselves that one had no suspicion of such good fortune, that one would be permitted to—how do you say?—slay two birds with one rock."

"How is that, pray?"

"But it was my intention, naturally, to inquire of my friend Monsieur Lanyard where I could call on Madame Crozier to pay her, also my homage and felicitations."

"What is the man talking about? 'Felicitations!'" Fay Crozier cried.

"Upon the happy event of this day, madame—"

"Are you mad?" The lady indignantly bridled, and then, reminding herself that the agent of the Sûreté couldn't possibly know what had happened, made her manner more gracious. "But no, monsieur. I quite see that you do not understand—how should you?—that this is anything but a day when Mr. Lanyard and I can welcome any sort of felicitations. It is, to the contrary, for us a day of sad anxiety."

"Ah, madame! But what calamity can possibly have been visited upon you?"

"We are not yet sure, monsieur," Lanyard replied, "that it is truly a calamity. We merely do not know. It is since eleven o'clock this morning that Madame's daughter, Mlle. Fenno, left her home to do some shopping. She was to have returned in time for a luncheon that Madame was giving some friends. She did not. So far as we can ascertain, she visited none of the shops she was to have gone to, and did not call at the home of any of her friends. Mme. Crozier feels certain that, if nothing untoward had happened to her, if she had simply been detained, say by some unforeseen accident, she would have telephoned her mother to explain."

"Ah madame!" The Frenchman produced a most lamentable groan "One's heart aches for you—"

"Nor is that all," Lanyard pursued. "My son, too, has disappeared. He left the shop here half an hour before noon, saying he had some affair to see to before luncheon. Nothing has been heard of him since. It is our fear that both young people have been made the victims of some scheme of vengeance plotted by such members of the Bellamy mob as have thus far avoided arrest."

"But that puts another light on it!" Plon protested, all at once the sympathetic, grieving friend no more. "If Monsieur Maurice disappeared at the same time, and the two kept you in the dark as to their intentions—it is simply that they were thoughtless, as young people preoccupied with the romance of life are apt to be. When you know the truth be sure you will forgive them."

"'The truth'?" Lanyard demanded. "What is this that you are so unfeelingly declining to tell us?"

"Shall I be a spoil-sport?" Plon expostulated. "But no. There is no need, I have indeed called in an auspicious hour, my friends!"

But nobody was listening to him now—for the door had unceremoniously been thrown open, and Fenno herself was on the threshold—Fenno transfigured by drinking deep of the joy of life and its beauty—with Maurice showing a face as happy over her shoulder.

"Mother! What luck to find you here!" The girl fairly threw herself into her parent's arms. "We were on our way home to tell you, and only stopped in for a minute to tell"—she looked round impishly to Lanyard and flung out a hand to him—"to tell Father! We've been out of town all day—such a divine day—motoring up to Connecticut to get married."

"Married!" Fay Crozier gasped.

"And we're sailing tonight for a honeymoon to France. Say you forgive us and—bless us."

"It was that, you comprehend, Plon put in, "that brought me up here to tender my felicitations, Mme. Crozier, and you, monsieur, my friend! When I saw that the bridal suite on the Navarre had been booked for Monsieur and Madame Maurice Lanyard, it was a natural conclusion, surely, to one who had seen what I had seen on the voyage over, that the bride would be Mademoiselle Fenno. And I had a happy inspiration," he brightly prattled on while Lanyard and Fay Crozier were recollecting their wits. "It seemed to me that a certain special wedding present to the bride was indicated, and I had the hope that she might be gracious enough to permit me—"

He conjured out of some recess in his garments a little box wrapped in fair white paper and bound with a white satin ribbon, and with a profound bow placed it in Fenno's hand.

"But, monsieur," she breathlessly protested, "this is too good of you!"

"Not so good of me as it will be of you, madame, to accept."

"But how wonderful!"

The ruby ring of the Rajah of Ladore blazed on the white velvet bed of the box that Fenno had opened.

"But before you do me so much honor, madame, let me tell you a secret." Plon impishly chuckled. "That ring you see there was not come by honestly. That is the truth, madame. It is a souvenir of my first and last step aside from the ways of legal honesty. Yet I am sure your father-in-law will tell you, too, that you need not hesitate to take it from me—there could be no more fitting wedding present for the bride of the Lone Wolf's son."

"Pardon, monsieur," Maurice interposed. "There is a small mistake there. Forgive me if I venture to correct you." He crossed to his father and took his arm. "The Lone Wolf's son no more, monsieur—but M. Michael Lanyard's."

A Factor in Health of Infants

Dr. Copeland Advises Young Mothers in the Care of Babies

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

ON MY farm in the country is a pool where the children and young folks of the neighborhood come to swim every hot day in summer. Not long ago I sauntered down to witness the sport and found my daughter-in -law and five of her friends, all young mothers.

They had their children, a total of seven youngsters, from two months of age to four years. Under the old apple tree these youngsters were sheltered from the merciless sun while the mothers swam in the pool. Pretty soon I found myself the center of an interesting group, eager to ask questions about infant care and child health.

I asked the mothers to name the most urgent problem with which they have to deal in taking care of their little ones. With one accord it was agreed that occasional, or more or less permanent constipation of the babies gave them more concern than anything else, except severe acute illness, of course.

There is no doubt this ailment is an important factor in infant life. The presence of constipation means that the feeding is not right. Its correction is a matter of perfecting the diet.

It is the bottle fed infant that has trouble. Suiting the formula to the needs and digestive powers of the child is the problem and it is not an easy one to solve.

Diet Important

Cow's milk differs from human milk in that it is more concentrated and contains less sugar. For these reasons it has to be "modified" by diluting with water and adding sugar.

The kind and amount of sugar used has much to do with the creation or correction of constipation. Every infant specialist has his favorite formula. He may advise cane sugar, sugar of milk, old-fashioned brown sugar, sugar made of dextrose and maltose, or corn syrup. No matter which is used, if it is in excessive quantity, constipation is to be expected.

It is the experience of those who have tried it that constipated infants who have been getting cane sugar, will be greatly benefited by substituting equal parts of cane and old-fashioned brown sugar. In any event, if the bowel action is sluggish there must be a suspicion that the sugar mixture is wrong.

Sometimes prune juice will give relief. The common prunes are cooked without sugar. A teaspoon of the juice with a teaspoon of water, given occasionally between feedings will help a lot. If necessary two teaspoons of the juice to one of water will be more satisfactory.

If these simple measures fail to prove beneficial to your child, talk with your doctor. It is absolutely necessary that the formula shall be accurately made and his advice is needed in the individual case.

KNOW YOUR CANDIDATES

Probably to the surprise of many, one of the closest fights at the approaching primary will center around the race for the Democratic nomination for county treasurer, in which three well known local Democrats are taking part.

The three candidates are working feverishly, although quietly, and have been all over the county sounding out sentiment. All seem to be enthusiastic and sure of victory.

Two of the candidates, Earl L. Hoffman and Frank Anderson, have spent most of their lives on the farm, while the third, Robert G. Colville, worked for years as a partner in the Jeffries and Colville dry goods store here.

Here are short sketches of the candidates:

FRANK ANDERSON, 60 218 Watt-st, born near Clarksburg, December 21, 1873, son of Samuel and Louisa Anderson. He grew up on a farm and attended grade school. He later married. Served as a township trustee and member of the school board in Deercreek-twp and has been a livestock dealer for a number of years. He has recently been interested in settling estates, acting as an assignee in four cases. Mr. Anderson is married and has four children.

ROBERT G. COLVILLE, 401 E. Main-st, born in this city, a son of the late Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Colville. He attended Circleville high school and Wooster college, graduating from both. At an early age joined the late T. F. Jeffries in the partnership of the Jeffries and Colville store, where he spent a number of years. He is a member of the Circleville city school board of education, now acting as clerk. Was an unsuccessful candidate for treasurer four years ago. He is married and has five children.

EARL L. HOFFMAN, 51, 512 S. Court-st, the present incumbent, born in Washington-twp, October 10, 1883, a son of Isaiah and Emma Hoffman. Attended Washington-twp school and became interested in farming. He served as manager of the Pickaway Livestock Cooperative Association soon after the organization of the farm bureau. Has been a dealer in livestock for a number of years. Nominated and elected county treasurer in 1930 and 1932. Mr. Hoffman's campaign for re-election is based, he says, on the fact that he "is qualified by experience, pledging an economical administration and running on his past record."

The MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

The "talkie" version of "Sorrell and Son," Warwick Deeping's celebrated story of father love, which begins a three day showing Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre comes in answer to the wishes of the millions of men and women who cherish fond memories of the novel and the silent film which United Artists released nearly seven years ago.

In this newer version, produced in England by British and Dominions, H. B. Warner again plays the role of Stephen Sorrell, and it is reported that the present characterization is even more effective than the original, since to it this splendid actor brings not only the magic of his speaking voice, but also the thousand little touches one always longs to add to a piece of work once it is irrevocably completed.

One of the chief charms of both the silent and sound versions is their rigid adherence to the story. The "talkie" was adapted to the screen, in close association with Major Deeping, by Lydia Hayward, who so successfully adapted the Noel Coward musical "Bitter Sweet."

AT THE GRAND

John Boles' singing voice has several excellent opportunities in the songs that are logically woven into the story of the Fox romantic comedy, "Bottoms Up," coming to the Grand Theatre on Sunday for three days. The film also introduces a new voice, the charming soprano of "Pat" Paterson. The romance centers about these two.

Most of the comedy is supplied by Spencer Tracy, Herbert Mundin, Harry Green and Sid Silvers. The story brings out into the open the truism that you have to bluff Hollywood to win its favor. And thereby hangs the plot.

Girl Scout News

Girl Scout troop No. 4 held its meeting Wednesday morning in Mr. Pontius' woods on the Lancaster-pk.

We hiked to the woods where we cooked our breakfast. After breakfast we sang a number of songs and played many games.

We arrived home at 11:30 a. m. We hope soon to go on an overnight hike.

Claude Wing, of Creola, was a week-end visitor here.

Virginia Ann Hunsicker spent part of last week at the Lancaster camp ground.

Richard Metzger, of Chillicothe, was a visitor here Sunday.

Rev. W. A. Moore and family left Tuesday for a motor trip East.

Lem J. Hurst, of Columbus, was a visitor here Thursday.

Mrs. Glen Baker entertained her bridge club and several additional guests Wednesday evening. Midsummer flowers added charm to the occasion. A salad course was served at the four small tables at the conclusion of play. Gifts for high and low score were received by Mrs. Harry West, of Circleville, and Miss Laura McGhee. Mrs. H. W. Campbell will entertain the club in two weeks.

Miss Laura McGhee has returned home after spending several weeks in normal school.

Mrs. S. B. Metzger was hostess to her contract bridge club Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Harry McGhee spent part of this week in Greenfield.

Mrs. Newel McNeal and daughter, Miss Wanita McNeal spent Sunday in Columbus, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Gernalay.

Miss Helen West, of Circleville, spent Wednesday evening with Miss Mary K. Baker.

Charles D. Wright, of Circleville, was a visitor here Thursday afternoon.

The Sorosis club picnic will be held Sunday, Aug. 5, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Metzger. Members and their families are invited.

Although New York and other eastern markets are the best markets in the world for quality eggs, they are the poorest for low quality eggs.

Coming to The Cliftona Theatre

H. B. Warner in a scene from "Sorrell and Son," Warwick Deeping's immortal story, now a talking picture opens Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

SUPPORT MISS DUNGAN

When the democratic voters of Pickaway-co and the 11th congressional district go to the polls and vote on Tuesday, August 14th there is one candidate that they should not forget to vote for and that is Jemima Dungan.

Always a staunch Democrat she has done a splendid job for the party since being elected to her first term as committeewoman from the 11th district. During the last presidential campaign she organized all the counties in the district, appointed chairmen and committees that functioned throughout the campaign and was one of the mainstays in giving the party a splendid victory at the election.

She also attended the national convention at Chicago as an alternate and while there was again instilled with the spirit of democracy and worked unceasingly for Roosevelt and has been a strong supporter of the President since his election.

Her work was so appreciated by the other counties of the district that she has the unanimous endorsement of the executive committees of Pickaway, Ross, Fairfield and Hocking counties and has strong support in Perry-co.

One of her accomplishments during the last campaign was the organization of the younger members of the party, and in her own county, Pickaway, she had an active glee club that was heartily received at many meetings during the campaign.

Her efforts and accomplishments during her first term certainly deserve recognition and she should receive the support of every county and re-election for a second term.

A DEMOCRAT,
Interested in the party.

Ickes' Quiet Campaign to Bring Visitors to Parks Shows Results

WASHINGTON — Tomorrow is big day for Honest Harold Ickes. Using the President of the United States as his chief sales attraction, he is selling the National Parks to the public as no other Secretary of the Interior . . . Ickes is a unique salesman. It is a stern, rockvisaged Ickes who talks about "hot oil" or attempted graft in the Public Works Administration. But it is a lyrical Ickes who talks about his National Parks — "the healing touch which nature holds in the forested places of the earth" . . . Ickes always has been a great nature lover, developed an important species of gladiolus.

When he became Secretary of the Interior he started a quiet nature-selling campaign, persuaded Jim Farley to issue special stamps for the ten largest National Parks, boomed the fact that the depreciated dollar made travelling cheaper at home.

As a result, Park visitors increased in the off-season this year 37 percent . . . Several years ago Ickes spent fifteen days riding horseback in Glacier National Park, will be able to show the President personally the Blackfeet Indian Reservation, the Continental Divide between the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers, and the buffalo jump-off where the Indians slaughtered their buffalos by forcing them to jump from the cliffs. Ickes also can assure his Chief that the Blackfeet by Mystic ritual have "purged" Two Medicine Valley of any evil influence in preparation for the visit of the Great White Father.

War Clouds

Stanley Baldwin's cool announcement that Britain's border is now the Rhine meant just one thing to State Department observers: the entente between France and Britain is now as complete as when the Kaiser invaded Belgium . . . As a matter of fact, France has given the British important air bases in northern France, from which they can unite against a German invader . . . The new military entente was arranged last month during the visit of the French Chief of Staff in London. His talks were eclipsed by the French Foreign Minister Barthou, but they were more important . . . The chief danger of hostilities in Europe is through a "preventive" war. The French General Staff has figured that it would be easier to check Germany now than five years hence. British leaders for the first time begin to concur in this. This is one of the chief developments of the new entente . . . An Austrian incident may give the necessary excuse.

$10,000 Jobs

Good news for Republicans. President Roosevelt has two $10,000 jobs to fill which require Republican appointees. One is on the HOLC, as successor to Walter Newton, the other on the RFC, to take the place of the late John J. Blaine.

Both posts will be filled at an early date . . . When sandy-haired Chairman Joseph J. Kennedy, of the SEC, was told that several Democratic Senators have privately urged Bill Borah to start a public subscription fund to pay off the $35,000 owed by the Democratic National Committee to Kennedy, the latter replied: "Now that is my idea of a swell suggestion. That debt is the slowest asset I have, and, believe me, I could use the money. By all means urge Senator Borah to go ahead. He has my warm approval."

The RFC saved a neat sum for the B. & O. Railroad when it agreed to take any part of the recent $50,000,000 bond issue which the bankers did not buy. The bankers had first demanded a 5 1-2 per cent interest rate from the B. & O. but with RFC backing they came down to 4 1-2 per cent . . . New Mexico's regular Republican organization has made its peace with Senator Bronson Cutting, militant liberal who bolted to Roosevelt in 1932 . . . Cutting's Progressive faction and the regulars have buried the hatchet, are united behind his re-election candidacy . . . A. F. of L. President Bill Green has come out for Wisconsin's youthful Senator Bob La Follette, running this year on a third party ticket . . . In a statement widely publicized in the labor press of the country, Green calls on the workers to return Young Bob to the Senate . . . P. L. Gassaway, "cowboy judge" of County, Okla., who recently defeated the veteran Representative Tom McKeown, Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, wears high-heeled boots, a 10-gallon hat, and has the voice of a hog caller.

ATLANTIC, Mass. — Enjoy things in moderation and live a long life was the opinion of Dr. Walter G. Kendall celebrating his 80th birthday. Dr. Kendall, famous cyclist, admitted that since he was 19 years old he has enjoyed "from four to five highballs every day."

LOST 20 LBS. OF FAT IN JUST 4 WEEKS

Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo. writes: "I'm only 28 yrs. old and weighed 170 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and furthermore I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know.

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at any drugstore—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back.

SPEEDY RELIEF FROM BUNIONS-SOFT CORNS

No sensible person will continue to suffer from these intense, agonizing, throbbing bunion pains when the new powerful penetrating yet harmless antiseptic Emerald Oil can readily be obtained at any well stocked drug store.

Apply a few drops over the inflammed part and see how speedily the pain disappears and the inflammation is reduced. So marvelously powerful is Emerald Oil that soft corns seem to shrivel right up and drop off. Guaranteed.

Italy Stands by as Austrian Revolt Spreads

Italian troops on Austrian border in Alps.

The map in the above layout locates the various points in Austria where Nazi forces and government troops waged fierce battles in a civil warfare, which gave indications of spreading, as an aftermath of the assassination of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss in a Nazi putsch to gain control of the government. While the nation rumbled in turmoil, Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy amassed 48,000 troops, fully equipped for war-time service, on the Austrian frontier.

ANNIVERSARY

among the world powers. The munitions supply has dwindled so low that for the past year the army's combat troops have had no ammunition allowance for target practice.

If the Austrian situation should develop into another World war and the United States was dragged in, this nation would have to rely for at least four months on a friendly ally for munition supplies or find itself virtually at the mercy of the enemy within six weeks.

If called upon to fight on a scale similar to that experienced in the World war, practically every branch of the army, including the air corps, infantry and artillery, virtually would run out of ammunition in about six weeks.

It is estimated that under present industrial mobilization plans it would take six months to convert commercial factories to a munition - manufacturing basis sufficient to meet the full-time requirements of the army.

ARSENALS INADEQUATE

Existing government arsenals, working full blast, could produce only eight per cent of the army's war time requirements.

Therefore, it was pointed out, during the transition of industry from a peace-time to a war-time basis, a period of about four months would elapse during which time this country would have to rely on some other nation for munitions supplies.

The army is lacking in almost every weapon of modern warfare.

that James A. Colescott, Klan leader in the state, was on the payrolls of Gov. George White's administration. Gov. White, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the senate, said that Davey "was knowingly in error." That the Klan issue would be fought to a bitter finish was indicated when Colescott said he would issue a statement early next week.

Toledo—U. S. Senator Simeon D. Fess, 72-year-old Republican, continued his attack on the New Deal in a speech here by declaring that "within 12 months after his election, President Roosevelt has added 95,000 federal employes to the pay rolls and had established 52 commissions, more than any other president in history."

Youngstown-Clarence J. Brown, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, demanded revision of Ohio's public utility laws to speed decision in rate cases. Brown, in his speech, also charged that "honest relief work has been sacrificed to political expediency under the present Democratic administration."

HITS LOBBYISTS

Steubenville— Daniel Morgan, former Cleveland city manager, who also is seeking the Republican gubernatorial nomination, attacked "unscrupulous bank lobbyists and interests who employ them" in a campaign address here.

Columbus—John A. Elden, candidate for the same post as Brown and Morgan, pledged himself against increased taxes if he is elected. However, Elden said he would favor some increased taxes if they were enacted for the schools only.

Alliance—Frank G. Harrison, another Republican gubernatorial candidate, challenged his opponents to state their position on state relief policies. He said in part that "we must send relief back to the township trustees where it belongs."

Dayton—Ora B. Chapman, president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor, endorsed the candidacy of William G. Pickrel, Democratic gubernatorial candidate. He described Pickrel as "a friend of organized labor."

Youngstown—The second Ward Non-Partisan political club here endorsed the candidacy of Lt. Gov. Charles Sawyer for the Democratic nomination for Governor. Swayer was described as "public spirited, civic-minded, honest, loyal and trustworthy."

MORGAN-MASCHKE?

Columbus—C. Nelson Sparks, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, carried his campaign to the air by a radio broadcast to attack the candidacy of Morgan for the same post. He charged Morgan "was aligned, hook, line and sinker, with the Maschke crowd of Cleveland."

Other political candidates continued their campaigns by visiting old friends and aligning new support in many counties of the state. They made no speeches but contented themselves with personal talks to county and city political leaders.

est government considers a "reasonable" offer by Manchukuo for the purchase of Russian interests in the vitally strategic Chinese Eastern railway.

Fourth—That the government-controlled Soviet press continues its attacks upon Japan.

"If Russia continues to indulge in a Machiavellian policy toward Japan and Manchukuo," Nichi Nichi warned "Japan will suspend all negotiations with the Soviet government and check all provocative moves by the Russians."

Russo-Japanese relations, which had improved in recent months, again became tense this week when the Soviet government rejected a proposal by Manchukuo, made through Foreign Minister Hirota as intermediary, for sale of Russian interests in the Chinese Eastern railway.

The C. E. R. Traverses Manchukuo and is the shortest route between western or European Russia and the Pacific. Its importance, both from the military and commercial standpoint, is inestimable.

The Manchukoans, the Soviet government announced, had offered only one-tenth the value of the Russian interest in the railway. They made a counter-offer which Hirota described as "fantastic" and he announced that in the future Moscow must deal directly with Manchukuo.
